No Doubt About It...

We've Got Class

Mallard 87

Doing a "High Five", Matthew Pearson and Robert Frederick congratulate each other on an excellent play.

Cut For Sparkle and Shine

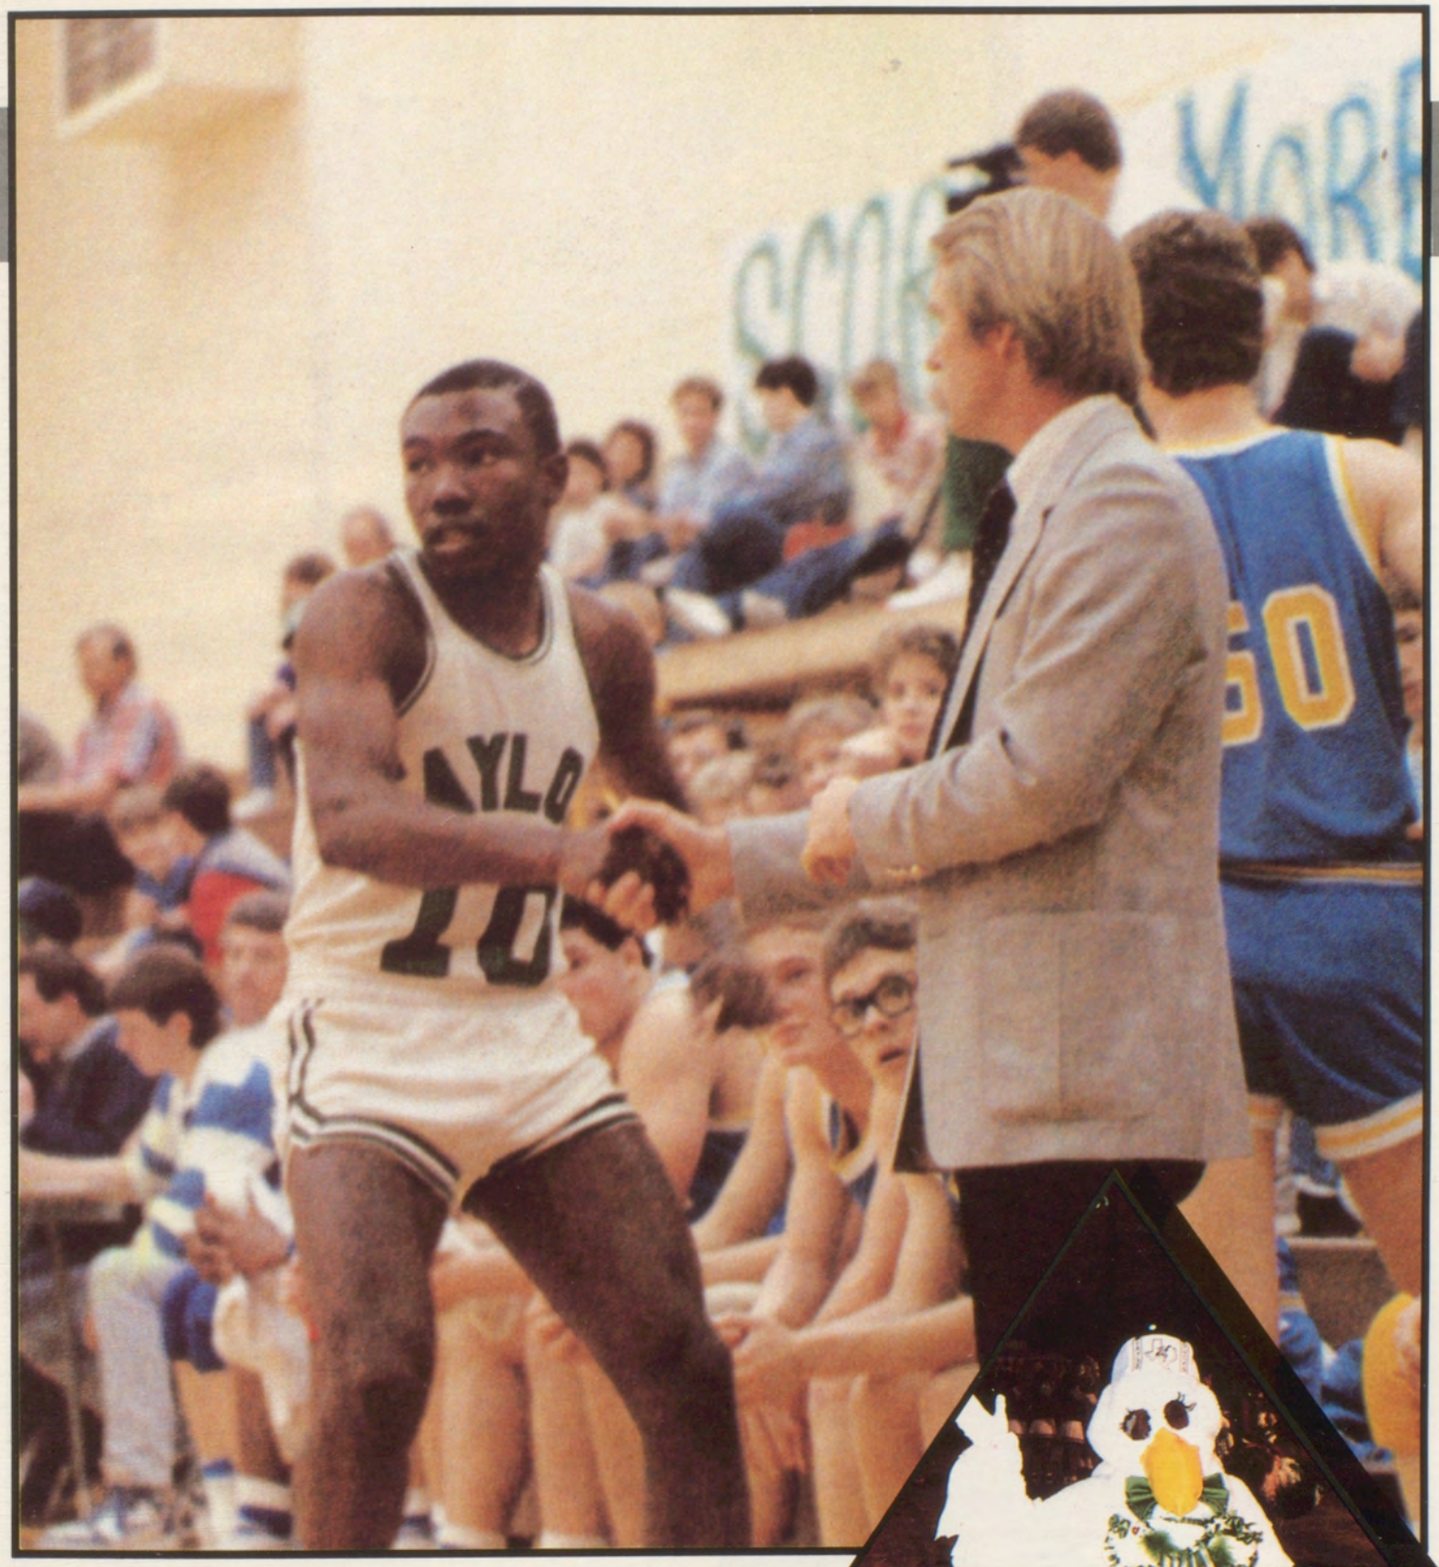

For as long as we could remember, our goal had been to go beyond "better" and strive for "best"; we were never content to take second place to anyone. It was a feeling that started with the administration and permeated through the faculty and on to the students. We felt unique both in attitudes and actions because we had dedication, perserverance, pride and unity . . . all of the qualities necessary to come out on top in this world. One might say we wanted to enjoy the good life, but most of all, we wanted to do it with class. Our goal was to sparkle and shine on our own merit, and so the year was spent cutting, polishing and refining the lives of those around us.

Raising their hands, the student body sings the school song with pride and most of all, CLASS.

Waving to the crowd, Waddles (Stayci Roznovak) exhibits her many mums she received for Homecoming.

Ducks of a Feather . . .

As new members of our family, the freshmen entered the doors of our school, and we were proud of the fact that they arrived determined to be a part of the unity we valued so highly. Likewise, we pulled together to form "Ducks Against Drugs" to help fellow students realize they did have an option to the pressures of drugs and alcohol. We were more like a family unit working together. Student Senate became more active; NHS grew. Every organization did their part to make achievements, but with each accomplishment, new strength was evident. There was no holding us back because we were out to prove that not only were we the best, but we did it with class.

Sharing the latest news, Kellie Whatley, Shelly Machu, John Leschber, Lisa Radomski, and Tim Kaderka await the morning bell.

HOMECOMING!

This year's Homecoming was a disappointment to many because the school did not allow us to have a parade or even a bon-fire. However, the cheerleaders found a way to raise our spirits. They decided to have a sign contest in which a sign was to be designed by each class and organization and displayed in the Student Center. The winner was to be announced at the special Homecoming pep-rally.

The pep-rally was the greatest it's been in years. It began at 12:45 and lasted until 2:30. Included in the entertainment were the high-steppers doing a routine. The teachers and football players also participated in the pep-rally with enthusiastic skits. Overall, the pep-rally was a success for it raised a great amount of enthusiasm. When the pep-rally was over, students went home and got prepared for the pre-game ceremonies and the well-awaited Homecoming game.

The ceremonies began at 7:00 with the announcing of Homecoming queen. The 1986 Homecoming queen was Lisa Radomski. She was escorted by Chad Patschke. Her princesses were Monica Carmona and Evelyn Nelson. Also, during halftime, the band beau and band sweetheart were announced. The band beau was Todd Bachmayer and the band sweetheart was Tiffany Shoenrock.

Even though we lost the game by a score of 14-13 we knew that this was one of the best Homecomings ever.

Ending a routine, the High Steppers smile with the satisfaction of knowing they did good.

Raising the sign so that the football team can run through are Renata Ruzicka, Monica Carmona, and Dominique Griffin.

Moving to "Viva Max", Dominique Griffin, Monica Carmona, Tami Campbell, Renata Ruzicka, Kelly Whatley, Lisa Radomski, and Kristi Johnson have a blast.

Spirit Filled With

The success of our student body was due to the spirit, enthusiasm, pride and dedication of everyone involved. Many organizations took part in our special spirit raising pep rally on Homecoming. Skits were done by the cheerleaders, Hi-steppers, band, teachers, and even the football players. This was a first for the football players and because of the spirit they raised, it was certainly not to be the last.

For the special pep rally we had half a day of school work, and attended the three hour homecoming pep rally. The spirit and pride shown in the pep rally indicated the support and enthusiasm that we give to our athletes, who put alot of effort and dedication into their sport. We encouraged them to do their best.

Spirit, pride and dedication is what has made us a success and will continue throughout the future.

Desire to Succeed

Preparing victory signs, the cheerleaders help fire up the Taylor Ducks, in hopes of cheering on their way to the play-offs.

Gathering together after a game, the fans race to the field to congratulate the football players.

Getting a hug, Brian Winkler and Chad Holmstrom realize that their student body is depending on them to help get one step closer to the play-offs.

FRIENDSHIP

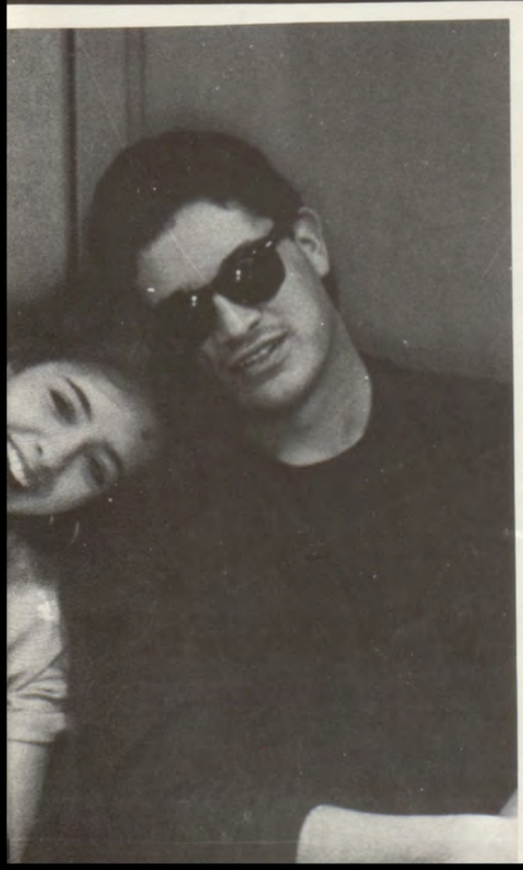

The buzzing sound of the alarm clock awakens you. You feel dazed and tired because you know the early morning has come too quick. Another weekend has already come to end. You wish it is all a dream. It's still only Sunday morning but you have to face reality. Its a start of a whole new week. One (force) that pushes you a little harder and urges you to make that extra step to get up is knowing you have time to share with your friends on this dreadful Monday morning.

Throughout high school, friends play an important part in everyone's lives. From the first day of school your freshman year, you will meet new people and grow closer to them each day. Friends are not chosen overnight. They are chosen very carefully and that is why they are so special and dear to us.

As all friends do, you become closer as time passes. Friends mean alot to everyone. They are special people who love your laughter as well as your tears. You always need someone to tell your secrets and problems to. Friends are always there to lend an ear. Also, friends will always stand by you throughout the toughest times as they know you would do the same for them.

This one special part of your life, with all the love, caring and helping out proves to be one of the most valuable possessions a person can have. Throughout the years, the good times outstand the bad ones and all the memories you gain will remain in the most special part of your heart for you to cherish forever.

Living for the WEEKENDS

After a hectic week of homework and tests, we tried our best to pack as much fun as we could into our week-ends. As the 3:30 bell approached on Friday, thoughts of sports, dances, parties, and concerts filled our minds. For some, week-ends included jobs to help support cars, hobbies, and college funds, but even those who worked found time to relax and enjoy the company of friends. It didn't matter if we didn't have special plans; we enjoyed taking a drag to see who was with whom. One thing was for sure, the week-ends were too short and the week-days too long! We lived for the week-end.

Cruising through Mr. Gattis parking lot, Debbie Canales, Cindy Raesz and Sara Carmona look for people they know.

AFTER THE BELL RINGS

As the watch hands slowly moved toward 3:25, we began to get restless. For many of us, the day had begun at 7:30, and we were ready to be free. Our evenings were filled with as many relaxing events as we could pack into them. Some of us started our after school trek with a trip to Hardee's, McDonald's, or Sonic followed by numerous trips crusin' up and down the drag to see who was out. A few of our classmates went to visit their friends or straight home while others remained at athletics, stepper practice, or cheerleader practice. A few nights each week were devoted to organizational meetings because the meetings couldn't be held during the school day. Much to our discontent one certain aspect of nearly every night was homework. Many times this lasted into the morning hours. It seemed we got to bed just in time to start a busy day again.

Looking at someone's beat-up car, John Leschber, Lisa Krieg, and Tim Kaderka share a laugh.

On their way to Young Life, Lisa Krieg, Cherry Fugate, Katrina Petrus, and Stayci Roznovak look forward to having fun.

Dressed out and ready to go, Nikki Cochran, Natalie Lopez, Amy Sandoval, and Wendy Ivicic stretch together before practicing their routine for the Homecoming game.

The Sparkle of the Season

"When's our first holiday?" "Is it really that far away?" This always seemed to be the foremost question in the minds of every student. After long hours of hitting the books, we welcomed any days of diversion. Freedom, that's what we wanted most; freedom to let loose and just be ourselves.

Since Halloween fell on a Friday, we had to attend school, but many of us still kept the spirit by dressing for the occasion. A masquerade ball was even held the week before. It was a joint effort of all the clubs in the school.

Thanksgiving and Christmas, of course, meant celebrating with family and friends and hoping that Santa would think we had been "good" enough to get that special present.

Valentine's Day was once again spent in school, but those of us giving and receiving fowers didn't seem to mind because we knew we had someone special who cared about us.

Spring Break — well, let's just say we all had fun, each in our own way!

Overflowing with Valentine's surprises, the career and counseling center became a popular spot for flower receivers such as Melissa Limmer. Natalie Lopez watches as she is surprised.

Tropical Paradise

Telling Jodie Vanacek and Stephen Vorwerk to "stop before they lose," Zane Scruggs decides it would be best after seeing their hands.

As we walked in the doors, we were greeted by Hawaiian girls who festooned us with leis only to hear our names being announced. We were overwhelmed by the well planned scene of a Tropical Paradise . The juniors had done an excellent job. It was hard to imagine that this scenic spot was once the THS student center. Julie Schmidt and Jon Snyder-too did a great job because they were chosen as prom king and queen. However, they weren't the only ones who looked sharp. Many students found the money to hire limousines. The DJ who was hired truly played wonderful music which everyone seemed to enjoy. The theme was very well chosen and loved. It was evident that no-one wanted the night to end.

A CUT ABOVE

She shifted uneasily in her seat. She nervously watched as the selected ones walked up to the stage as their names were called from the long list. Then it was her turn. Her name echoed throughout the auditorium, and she slowly rose from her seat. Wondering if everyone was looking at her, she slowly made her way up the aisle. The sound of her footsteps echoed as she started up the steps to the stage. Now she could feel all eyes on her. She was so glad that Awards Assembly had been planned for a night. She knew her parents were watching proudly in the audience. Now she fully understood all the reasons for all those late nights over the books. She knew that no matter what fate had in store after today, she could always say with great pride and a feeling of accomplishment, "I was an honor graduate at THS."

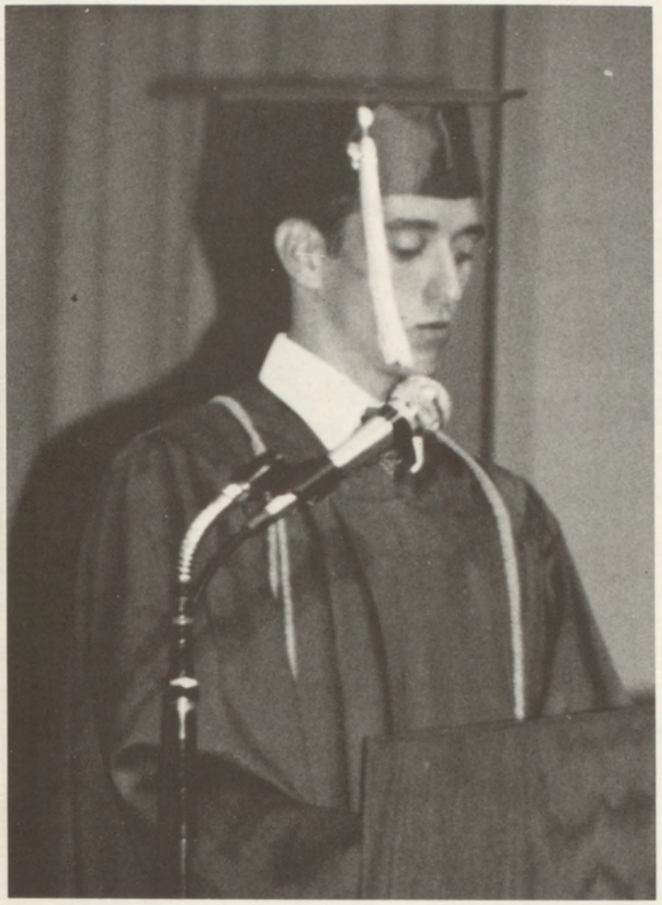

Practicing with her imaginary tassel, Becky Fontenot gets ready to take her place as an honor grad.

THS Honor Grads are: Monica Vanek, Lisa Vanek, Deana Mokry, Shannon Jordon, Becky Fontenot, Todd Bachmayer, Madeleine Gibson, Johnny Rodriguez, Leah Backus, Stacy Stiles, L'Tisha Lantzsch, James Safarik, Dawn Jessee, Andrea Stenholm, Marla Ladner, Jeff Neitsch, Julie Schmidt, Jon Snyder, Gary Gonzlea, Chad Patschke, Tiffany Schoenrock, Ricky Cole, Jeff Stork, Paul House, Ann Griffith, Sherri Lindemann, Evelyn Nelson, Jonna McCormick, and Tisha Moeller.

Winners

One And All

We realized from the very start that in order to be considered for a scholarship, we had to be outstanding in some way or another. Most of us decided that we had better buckle down and study 100% of the time. For some of us it was like one big, long game we played throughout our high school days. For others, it meant the difference in whether we attended college or at least which college we would attend. We all awaited the scholarship announcements a little edgy. When the time finally came, thirty-six of us were rewarded for our efforts. Each one of us truly felt like a winner in this game called life. Each one of us could hold our head up proudly and say, "I definitely gave it my best shot."

Receiving her scholarship from Mrs. Leachber, Deana Mokry looks forward to a brighter future.

Favorites of the Class

Smiling proudly, "Best Dressed" seniors are Joe Martinez and Leah Backus.

Showing some of that friendly playfulness, Evelyn Nelson and Darryl Jackson show why they were voted "Most Friendly."

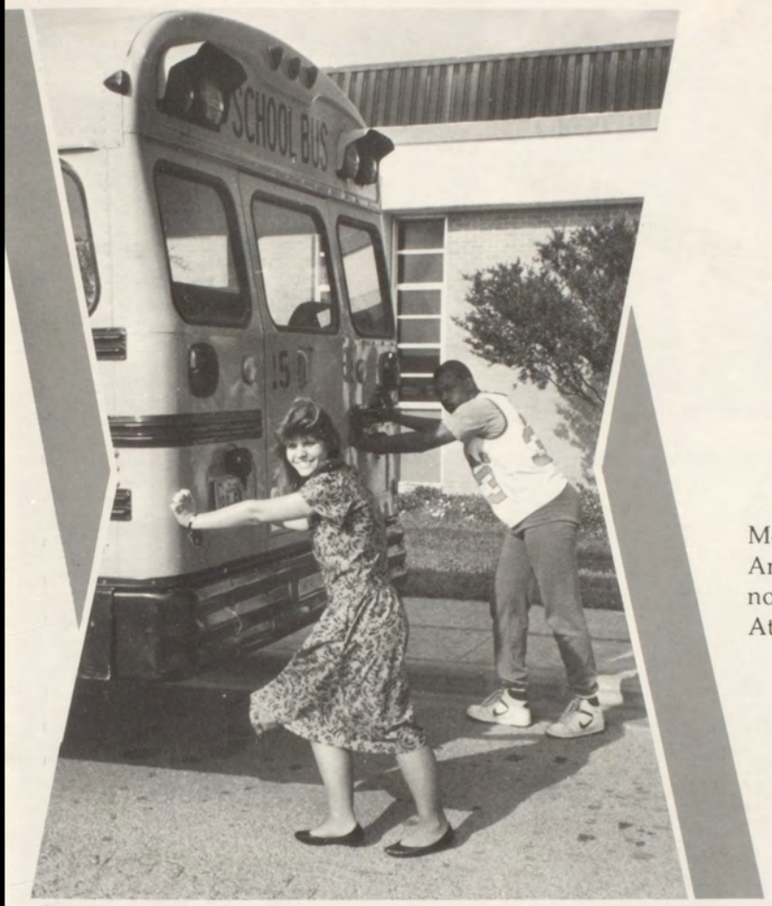

Conversing in the parking lot, Jon Synder and Jonna McCormick discuss being selected "Most Likely to Succeed."

Top-Picks

Did you ever notice that each class had outstanding members who stood out from the rest in more ways than one? There were people who, no matter what kind of mood they were in, managed to be friendly to everyone. Also, there were those who were always fashion coordinated. There were athletes who played many sports and managed to excel in all of them. In addition, there were those students who continuously made the all-A honor roll.

These students were chosen to be the class favorites. They not only worked for these titles, but also worked the years before. They were well earned and well deserved.

Trying to push a bus, Monica Vanek and Leroy Anderson are glad this is not the test for "Most Athletic."

Watching a movie, Lisa Radomski and Chad Patschke are perfect examples of Mr. and Miss THS.

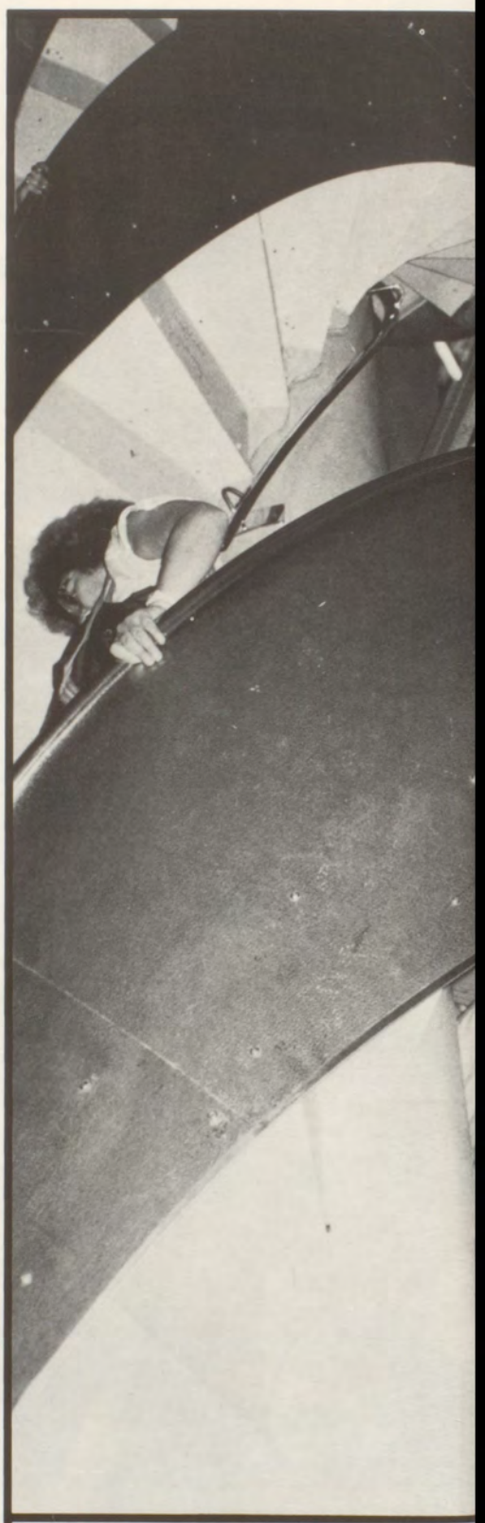

Sitting outside, Shane Polach, "Most Handsome," talks to Monica Carmona, "Most Beautiful."

and Patricia Gomez anxiously await the top.

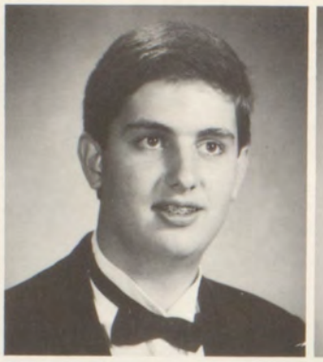

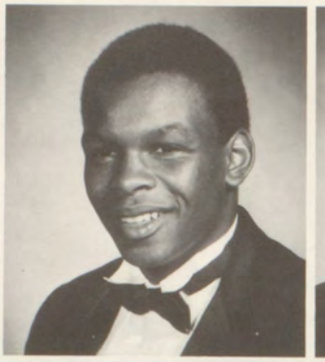

Keys to Class

Students at THS obviously have class. Having style, pride, and desire were the keys to having such class. Students at THS had style. Flashy clothes, nice cars, and hard working students are only a few things that added flare. Pride also brought class to THS. From seniors to freshmen, everyone took pride in what they did to make this year great. Organizations such as Sports, High Steppers, Young Life, FTA, Ducks against Drugs, etc. not only were successful, but also made our school as a whole proud. Lastly, desire gave us the power to overcome great odds, to score the winning touchdown, and to make the best grades. This made us better than everyone else. At Taylor High School, class is a tradition, and the key is held by everyone — not just a few.

Ready to Conquer the World

The day we looked forward to all year had finally arrived. It did not turn out exactly as planned; it rained and graduation had to be moved into the auditorium. With our spirits dampened momentarily, we looked to the promise the night held. This is what we had worked so hard to accomplish. Our parents, friends and relatives filed into the auditorium. It seemed as if everything was happening in slow motion. "Pomp and Circumstance" began and we marched in. Evelyn Nelson gave the invocation. Ann Griffith and Ricky Cole gave their speeches. After a song by the graduating members of the choir, Mr. Lankford presented the class; the diplomas were presented. At this point many of us held our breath. Awards were next. As each name was called the suspense built. Finally, the presentations were completed, and Jon Snyder gave the class motto followed by the class song. A feeling of nostalgia tugged at our hearts as we raised our finger to the sky and sang the Taylor High School Song. With anticipation we left the auditorium, each of us sure we had a bright future to look forward to. We were ready to conquer the world; we had just graduated.

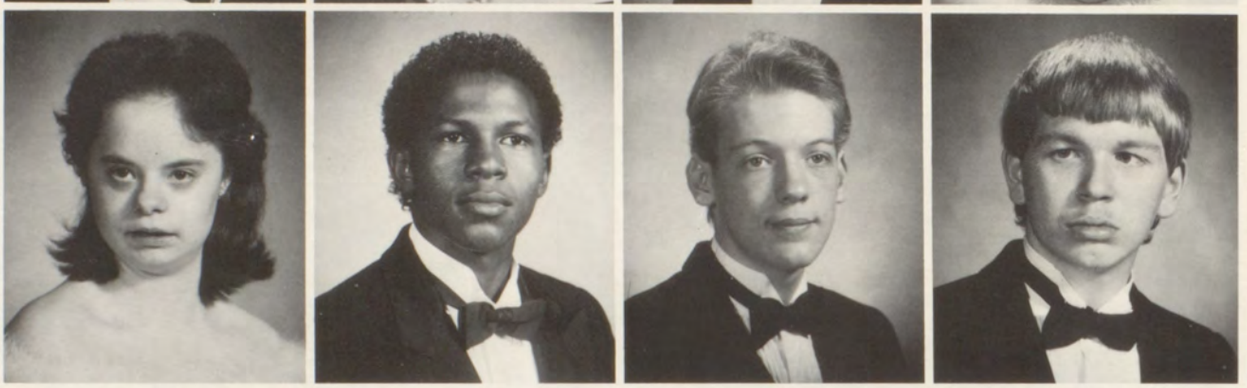

Looking forward to a new phase of life, Kellie Whatley proceeds across the stage after receiving her diploma.

Certain male members of the student body took part in an event in which just being involved was their challenge and winning the second annual Mr.(Miss?) Pageant was their destiny. The pagaent was held to raise money for the prom.

So, there they were showing off their beauty, talent, and ability to answer specific questions, which were given to them by juniors, Christi Janke and Kari Kovar.

Out of the sixteen outgoing and courageous students that entered this fund raiser for the junior class, one student went home that night knowing that he(she?) was the most beautiful and most intelligent. That student was Candy Babushka, better known by his junior classmates as Brian Winkler.

JUNIORS

Being Juniors this year meant that we had to raise a lot of money for the prom. We wanted this prom to be the best. We planned many money-making projects that we knew would give us enough to put on the kind of prom we wanted to have.

First of all we had the Homecoming concession stand which brought in more money than we had expected but still not enough to put on the prom. We had to come up with at least one more money making project. We needed something that would give us the rest. We decided to have a Second Annual Mr./Miss? Pageant. We knew it would bring in a lot of money just like it did last year. Sure enough, it did. We raised more than enough. We now knew that we could have the exact kind of prom that we wanted . . . PERFECT .

"The best part of being a sophomore is not being considered a fish anymore," stated Alan Odom concerned with the advantages of moving up the school ladder. Another part of the excitement of being a sophomore is knowing that we're one step closer to graduating. After a year of being in high school we felt more acquainted with the daily routine of upperclassmen and teachers. We no longer wandered through the halls like lost puppies. As sophomores we were getting involved in more activities and becoming part of the crowd. More and more of our classmates were getting their licenses so we were able to get rides instead of having to walk everywhere. This made us feel more at home, and we weren't scared of getting involved in new things like we were when we were freshmen. We knew this year was the start of bigger and better things for our future. We were really glad that we had already come one step closer.

Now that we had become sophomores, we felt we had changed in many ways. Not only had we moved up a grade, we also became more independent with our school work and our personal lives. Some of us now had the responsibility to get a job to pay for the things that we wanted or needed. For those of us that had cars, we had to know how to take care of them. For example, keeping them clean and making sure they had plenty of gas were tough jobs. And of course, now that we were sophomores, school had become much more important and much more demanding. We found ourselves paying more attention in class and having more homework than ever before. We could just imagine how the years to come would affect us.

Every high school student knows that along with getting a good education, it is also important to relax and have some fun. Most students accomplished this with the help of some type of music. It was evident that most all of the students liked the music of FREE FARE, a touring group from Florida. The FREE FARE concert in February was definately a mood elevator as it gave all of us a break from the everyday world of books, tests, and lectures. The actual concert was brought to us by the counselors with a preview given during second period on a Monday morning. When asked what she thought of the concert, Melissa Kolinek, freshman, said, "I thought it was great!" Mark Kokes replied, "I really enjoyed the concert. It was one way all of us could kick back and enjoy ourselves at school, which is sometimes hard to do."

Talking about the weekend, Martin Gonzales and Sharon Rosipal make their plans.

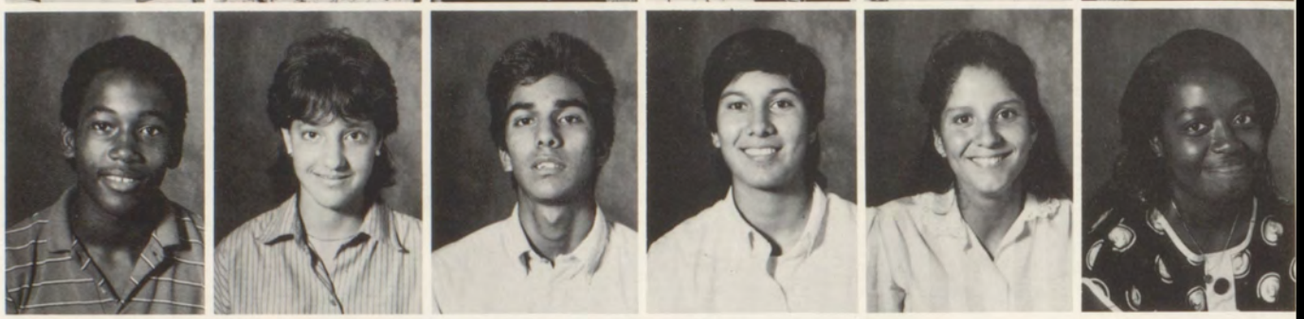

Incoming freshmen were in for a few good surprises upon their entrance to high school. They found that they had more privelages than they did in middle school. There were more activities and organizations to join, more friends to make and more time to have fun. High school was a lot more than they bargained for.

"Coming to Taylor High was exciting because we were unprepared as to how people would treat us, but we had the support of a lot of friends who helped a great deal," stated Kelly Spiller.

"My main worry about coming to high school was my grades since I expected the classes to be a lot harder. Teachers really rubbed it in that high school was tough," commented Michael Shirk.

FRESHMEN

When the freshmen came to high school, we figured they would be like typical "fish" — always under our feet and acting immature. Much to our surprise, it turned out to be the total opposite. This year's freshmen impressed us all. We couldn't believe how mature they really were.

They were always willing to help with any project we were doing. They also got involved in many organizations. In some organizations they even outnumbered the rest of the classes. It was surprising to see how many of the freshmen were willing to take an active part and not just attend the meetings. We knew that we truly had an outstanding student body because we had eager and willing participants in this year's freshmen class.

President of the Board

In order for a school to operate smoothly, there not only has to be a chain of command, but there must be open communication and a feeling of caring. Anyone who has ever been a part of the Taylor Schools know that this has always been most evident in our system. It begins with the Board of Education and progresses throughout. Every door is an open door, and every person is like a family member. When one of us fails, we all feel the pain, but when one of us succeeds, we all feel the triumph. Closeness? You bet. It didn't take any of us very long to realize that if we wanted to be the best that we could be, we had to work together. The old saying, "A chain is only as strong as its weakest link" made us all realize we had to be strong in order to succeed. A weak link? We don't think we had any. It appeared as if each of us complimented the other, thus the family chain was fused together from the top link to the closing clasp.

Excellence Along With Class

The excellence along with the class that we had shown throughout the year had become an important part of our daily lives. We were always our best, yet striving to be better than ever.

No matter what the course was, we knew that it was important to our future; therefore, doing our best was an important task. Whether it was an advanced course like Physics II or an average English course, we put our best foot forward. All of this hard work paid off. After graduation, we were confident knowing all we had learned had prepared us well. We would be able to show our abilities whether it was at college or on the job.

Molding into Gold

Since the beginning, many students wanted to become honor graduates. They also knew that they had to take courses that would require a great deal of time and effort. Like most students who chose this path, they knew what to expect, but they were willing to push theirselves those extra miles to obtain their goals; They wanted to wear the gold cords the night they graduated. As they actually got into some of these courses, they felt overwhelmed. There was never a dull moment with courses like physics, Physics II, precalculus, and trig. Project Go English classes did their part to challenge their minds and keep them busy as well. Teachers and students both seemed to welcome the opportunity to become involved in a personal way, but independent study was a necessity, and class discussions were much more open and in depth. They shared knowledge, and they all felt like they could finally impress someone with all of that brilliance that had been buried, waiting for the opportunity to burst forth at an opportune moment. Yes, they would wear the gold, but only after being molded and perfected.

Kids in Office

Although some students entered history classes without much enthusiasm, they soon learned that this was an exciting subject if they really got into it. The history teachers really worked at getting their students involved in the lives of our ancestors, helping them to see the good and the bad of some of the choices that were made. In Government, classes went to the Chamber of Commerce, and each student got to act as one of the members of the Taylor Council. This showed the students exactly what it was really like to have this much responsibilty. Although it was fun for one day, most agreeed that it was too much responsibility for every day.

Of course, in our foreign language classes, we learned about the past also. It was important that we learned about the country's life and customs in order to help us enjoy and study the language. German and Spanish classes participated in various field trips to invesigate the customs. Latin classes held their Ides of March exhibit and participated in slave day and a authentic Roman banquet.

We enjoyed diving into the past. After all, we figured that we had much to learn from the past of others in order make our own futures brighter. We were like gleaners, picking up the good ideas for later use. The bad ideas, we stored to remember the mistakes to avoid.

Healthy in Mind and Body

In spite of the challenges of coping with everyday life and our minds constantly thinking about what the future might bring, we still managed to get the proper exercise to keep our bodies as well as our minds healthy. For many of us, this came in the form of certain classes we took in school. We found that along with all of the math, science and English courses, we needed outlets such as sports, band, and Steppers. Although these were enjoyable, they were not often easy, and many of them required many hours of work outside the school day. But, these classes were different. We participated in these activities because we were particularly interested in them. No one forced us to be involved unless we wanted to be. One thing that really seemed to surprise some of us was that these activities not only kept our bodies exercised and healthy, but they also helped to relieve some of the stress that the rest of the day may have built up. They helped us to work out some of our tensions, and even though we often felt tired at the end of the workouts, we often walked away with renewed energy. We felt as if weights had truly been lifted from our shoulders.

Searching

From out of the mysterious hallways of knowledge, there came a word that some students thought to be as horrid as Freddy Krueger (from "A Nightmare on Elm Street"). The word was research.

For juniors and seniors this creature moved upon them like a vampire attracted to blood. Yes, whether it was in English or world history, each of these students were haunted with the requirement to suffer sleeplessness and write a term paper. For some seniors, this one paper could have determined their final rank or average.

But, this monster not only was present in English classes, but took on another disguise in the science classes where lab experiments helped students learn about their surroundings. The disguise was seen in the lab report.

By doing all this research, students led this miserable beast out of their lives and chose to realize that all this alien was trying to accomplish was to prepare them for the future.

Preparing for the Future

As I waited for the job interview, I tried to remember all of the things Mrs. Leschber had told me. I knew this job, if I landed it, might even lead to a permanent position. I needed this job, and I felt I was prepared.

A large part of our student body was allowed to work during their junior and/or senior year for half a day. Some of these students needed money for college; others needed to start preparing for permanent employment right after graduation. Vocational programs like ICT, VOE, HECE and DECA gave students the opportunity to explore careers and obtain valuable work experience.

How did they know which program to choose? VOE was for people wanting office jobs; ICT helped students into technical and construction fields. DECA was for those who wanted a sales career and HECE prepared students for a career related to homemaking. All of these were excellent programs; the hard part was deciding what you wanted to do.

KEYBOARDS

Keyboards, what did we do without them? School was full of so many different kinds. They were found in science classrooms where they were used to help students review for tests. Another place keyboards could be found was history classrooms. These were used to help students improve their map reading skills, among other things. It was almost impossible to walk down a hall without hearing their sounds or seeing their results on a monitor of some kind. We had always enjoyed the sound of the jazz band keyboards but now we had learned that keyboards could be used not only for making music, but also for typing, computer math, word processing, journalism, typing research papers, recording library books and obligations, and researching colleges. They helped speed up our life and that in turn helped give us more time to perfect our skills and enjoy our leisure time.

Earning Our Glory

Sports activities were one of our favorite parts of high school. No matter what sports we played, we always gave it our best so our friends, families, coaches and fans would be proud of us and proud of our school. We did great in every area this year and brought home many trophies and awards to show for all our hard work and dedication. Because of sports, we tried to keep our grades up. We knew we had to pass in order to play. Sometimes it was hard, but we showed everyone we could do it. After all, we wanted to be the best of the best.

Showing off their shirts, the regional qualifiers show their pride in their accomplishments.

Talent and Dedication

As football season began, we knew we had what it took to make a memorable year. Even though we started out losing a few games, we still made it to district play-offs. With our talent and dedication we went all the way to bi-district. "Overall, this was a good year. Our team had the drive and ability to take us as far as we went. This was an excellent way to start off my senior year," commented Leonard Winn.

"We had hard work-outs, but Coach Spiller knew that no matter how much we complained we would soon be thanking him once another game came our way and, of course, he was right," stated John Mueller. Even though we didn't win the bi-district game, we still felt as though we were big winners and we knew that our fans and coaches felt the same way. This season really did turn out to be a memorable one.

Refining to Perfection

What's involved in having a winning team? How important are scores anyway? Lee Perez commented, "J.V. football is important every year because it prepares you for varsity. But, most important, it's fun and you enjoy yourself."

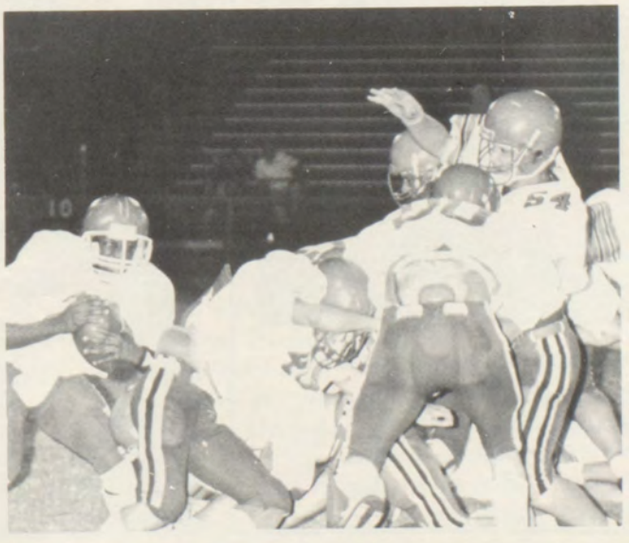

Everyone learned by trial and error. Next year they could put their experience into practice. We knew if we wanted perfection we had to take the trials of refinement to acquire skill. We welcomed those trying moments because we knew we learned from them — we got wiser, meaner, and tougher! By the end of the season, we could honestly say, we would by ready for varsity try-outs come next August. Like Todd Mucha stated, "We had a great season although our record didn't show it. Winning isn't always everything."

Enthusiasm and Ability

At the beginning of the year we felt as though we could have a winning team. We had the enthusiasm and ability to give it all we had. We put forth what we had and came out with a good season. Our district record was 7-7 which gave us a fourth place title. We were very pleased. Kristi Johnson said, "This year we really worked hard. Everyday we improved our skills for the tough competition ahead of us. It was all worthwhile because we had a great season."

"Volleyball is a fantastic sport that involves tough competition, strategy, and technique. I enjoy volleyball because I work very hard, but in the end all is paid off with victory," stated Cherry Fugate.

Cristi Hamann also replied, "This year, there were many conflicts within the team. However, those of us who toughed it out seemed to have fun. Next year we should have a more cooperative team and win more games."

This was the last year for the senior players, but those who would return would give their all to hopefully win more games.

Becoming A Member of the Team

Being beginners in high school didn't mean that we couldn't accomplish what we wanted to achieve. The season started off good, and with our hard work and dedication we ended the season with a first place title for both Freshmen and J.V. teams.

"This was my first year playing volleyball, and I thought it would be a little hard to be accepted by the rest of the team. As it turned out, everyone was really nice to me and made me feel part of the team. I think that since we all got along so well it made us play good together," remarked Peggy Dominguez, a sophomore.

We were very pleased with the outcome of the year, and we knew we could win district in the years to come.

Wanting to Win

This year's season wasn't one of the most succesful seasons in J.V. history. We lost a lot of our games by only one or two points. But, the team had determination and guts throughout the season. Most of all, we had the desire to win. Even though we knew we had a losing record, we still went out and gave it our best shot for every game. Every team we played had to work for their win.

"I had a lot of fun during the time that I played. I had some good teammates, and we all fought hard for the victories we gained," stated Klifton Krueger.

This year we had to overcome a lot of obstacles. Most of the people we used to play with either quit or were moved up to varsity. The J.V. team ended the season with a 4-12 record. The freshman team ended with a 3-11 record.

"Our season didn't go well at all; we lost a lot of tough games that we should have won. Even though our record wasn't too impressive to others, we knew we had done the best we possivly could have done. We knew we could do better next year because of the obstacles we had experienced."

Competing with the Toughest

Pride and determination were the main ingredients to our team. We did not concentrate on our losses, but focused on doing our best. With each game, we learned enough to improve over the span of the season. The Varsity Girls basketball team ended with a season of nine and four, which placed us third in distict. "Overall, this was a good year. Our freshman and JV teams used their abilities to do well in district," stated Coach Carl Price.

"Our district was full of tough competition. This included juniors and seniors, but we coped with them and proved to ourselves and others that we weren't quitters. "Being a Varsity player was rough because I was an underclassman playing with mostly seniors. The players expected a lot from me, but it was a privilege," stated Kim Winkler.

Perfecting Our Serve and Our Score

As I watched my teammates, I felt the adrenalin flowing. I knew I was the next one up on the court. I had worked hard, and I knew I was prepared for the challenge ahead. The set ended, and they called for the next players. Win or lose, I knew I was determined to give this guy a game he wouldn't forget.

These thoughts ran through the minds of every varsity tennis player at some point during the year. Players took their games seriously, and their final performances showed their talents and efforts. The girls gathered enough points individually to win first place in district, and the guys accumulated enough to win second. In the fall, they had re-eiveded second place in district team tennis and thus qualified for regional play.

When asked to describe tennis, varsity players had many things to say. Kristi Johnson said, "It's a lot of hard work, but well worth the effort."

Robert Kollman said, "You never know what's going to happen next. It's unpredictable. You're consistantly learning something new."

Although tennis meant different things to different people, all agreed they really enjoyed the sport.

Becoming Members of the "Big League"

As JV Tennis team members, we realized that this was our year to learn and try to make a name for ourselves. As we played in practices, we attempted to mimic the talents of the more advanced players. At times during the year, some of us were even given the chance to play with some of the varsity members. We asked many questions and got good answers from all of the varsity players. We wanted to be noticed, but we knew we had to spend long hours practicing to be a part of the "big league".

Our year was outstanding. We won first in district. It was possible to say that we accomplished our goals. With all those titles, we proved to ourselves and others that we had been hewed to perfection.

A Stroke of Luck or Skill?

Although not as many students participate in golf as they do in other sports, for those of us who did have an interest in the game, we found the year quite challenging. "Although there weren't as many tournaments to attend this year," stated Robert Kruse, "we still tried our best. We had a few beginners on the team, and I think they did pretty good."

Likewise, the golf team had a different coach this year. This year's coach was athletic director, Eddie Spiller.

Although we didn't win many tournaments, we had a good time trying to improve our game. We worked as partners and tried our best to help each other better our games. After all, part of the idea of sports is to have a good time, and that, we certainly did.

Ups and Downs

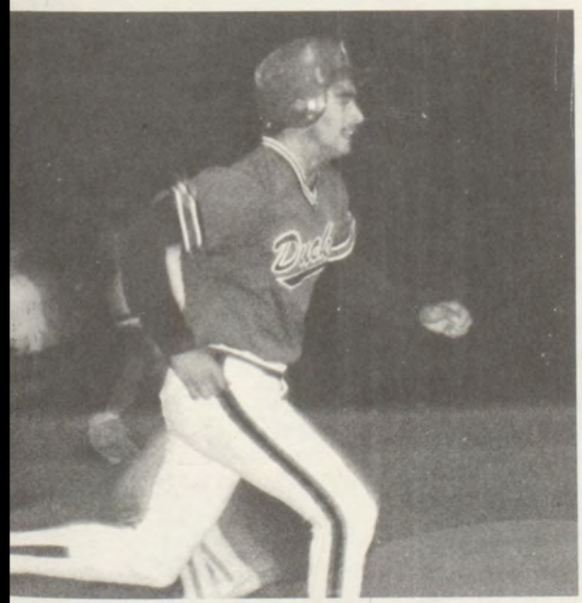

We had our ups and downs this year but once we started winning, things started to roll. Even though we may have won some games by one point, it's like Coach Rucker said, "We take'm like we can get'em."

We started off on the right foot during our scrimmages and had a rough time at a few of our games, but then we hist a hot streak and wound up with in the playoffs against #1 ranked Brenham.

You had to be at Olson Field in College Station to understand why we lost our first playoff game since 1983. Even though we were behind in the beginning, we showed Brenham that we weren't ready to fall so easily by scoring three runs, including a towering homerun. "Brenham deserves to be #1," Coach Kuhl said. He added, "It's those little mistakes that can make the difference between losing and winning a game."

New Track, New Season

This year we had a good season. Our sprint relay team went to state and did an outstanding job.

Our mile relay team set a new school record which is what helped us win the District Championship. "I was real proud running on the mile relay team for the second year. I was the only sprinter coming back for the sprint relay team," stated Roosevelt Williams.

This year we started track season late because we got a new all-weather track. Track meets haven't be held in Taylor for a couple years back because other schools refused to run on our gravel covered track. This track will solidify the team and it's endeavors for years to come. It will now be possible to start the annual Cottonboll Relay. This made many of the members quite happy.

The track team won numerous honors this year, but perhaps the most important events was the participation in the State competition. Jon Snyder, one of the competitors said, "It was very exciting to be able to leave a legacy behind as I left Taylor High."

The girls track team had an excellent year. Outstanding performances were made by all. In the 400 relay, Tonya Jefferson, Sharrah Huff, Regina Wright, and Tammy Williams set a school record of 49.2. In the 800 relay, Bettie Frederick, Tonya Jefferson, Sharrah Huff, and Regina Wright had a record of 145.3. Tammy Williams ran the 100 with a time of 12.1. She also ran the 200 with a time of 25.2. Tonya Jefferson ran the 100 hurdles with a time of 16.4. The J.V. track team received second place at regionals. The Varsity track team received third place.

"This was our first time to go to regionals and my girls did a real fine job. I hope that more girls get into the track program next year," said Coach Carl Price.

Since this years track team consisted of underclassmen and almost all of the the girls will be back, we should have an even better season next year.

Comrades Forever

Organization (or-ga-ni-za-shun), n. 1. group of persons united for some purpose. We had many organizations that involved many people who united for some purpose. We'll all agree that these have helped us better ourselves. The people who participated made these organizations function. Leadership (le-der-ship), n. 1. guidance or direction. These leaders guide the others and show them the way. Party (par-ty), n. 1. social gathering or entertainment. Going to club meetings and socials was like partying at school. Fun (fun), n. 1. playfulness, amusement. It filled the air with a lightness which lifted the burdens brought on by the books and studies.

Flashy With Class

This year started much like the year before, but we found that we actually preferred having band at this early hour because that left the rest of our day to the other classes. We were also free to be a part of the band and work if we chose. Of course, there were times we hated to have to get up early, but those early morning practice sessions really got our blood pumping, and by 8:35, we were wide awake and ready to sit down and study. We worked hard, but then we did fun things like our trip to New Orleans. The year had been full of fund raisers, but each time we started to get tired, we just thought of that trip. We gave our annual concerts, hosted band contest, and brought spirit and enthusiasm to the school. We received excellent scores on our contest materials, and we felt proud of our accomplishments. We took special pride in the Jazz Band extension. This group entertained at many schools and events during the year, and each time, they impressed people with their talents. We were a show band in every sense of the word. We were flashy, but we maintained a lot of class.

5,6,7,8, "Dance"

As September rolled around, we all knew it was the beginning of a new year, but what we didn't know was that it was the beginning of a proud year. As steppers, we found out what pride really was. It was having dedication and working two hours or more in preparation for that Friday night football game and also the most important event that could happen to any drill team — contest.

This year, the Steppers went to contest with many new and different ideas and returned with many new and excellent awards. The Hi-Steppers were awarded all I's in the three categories of High Kick, Jazz, and Prop. Likewise, we were very fortunate in receiving awards for musical interpretaion for High Kick, Jazz Choreography-Jazz, and Best Costume-Prop. Because of these awards, the Steppers also brought home the title of Grand Champion in the 4A division.

Cynthia Gonzales said, "Everyone deserves the praise — the Steppers, the sponsors and the officers." Likewise, she asks the question, "If this isn't something to be proud of, what is?"

A Night at the Movies

After months of practice, the night finally came for us to show what we had been working on for so long.

All day long we had feelings of anxiety. A few minutes before we went out for our first routine, the feeling turned into nervousness. We knew we had to do our best, and we wanted to have fun while doing it. We also knew this was our last performance for the year, so we wanted to do our best. Eight o'clock came and the lights went out. It was time for us to take our positions. The lights came back on and the music followed. Before we knew it, the routine was over. All of our nervous feelings were gone, and we went through the night performing to our best ability. After practicing and performing our routines over and over again, we had finally reached perfection. When the show ended, we knew we had achieved our goal of pleasing the audience and of course, pleasing ourselves. We had made our "Night at the Movies", a night we would always remember.

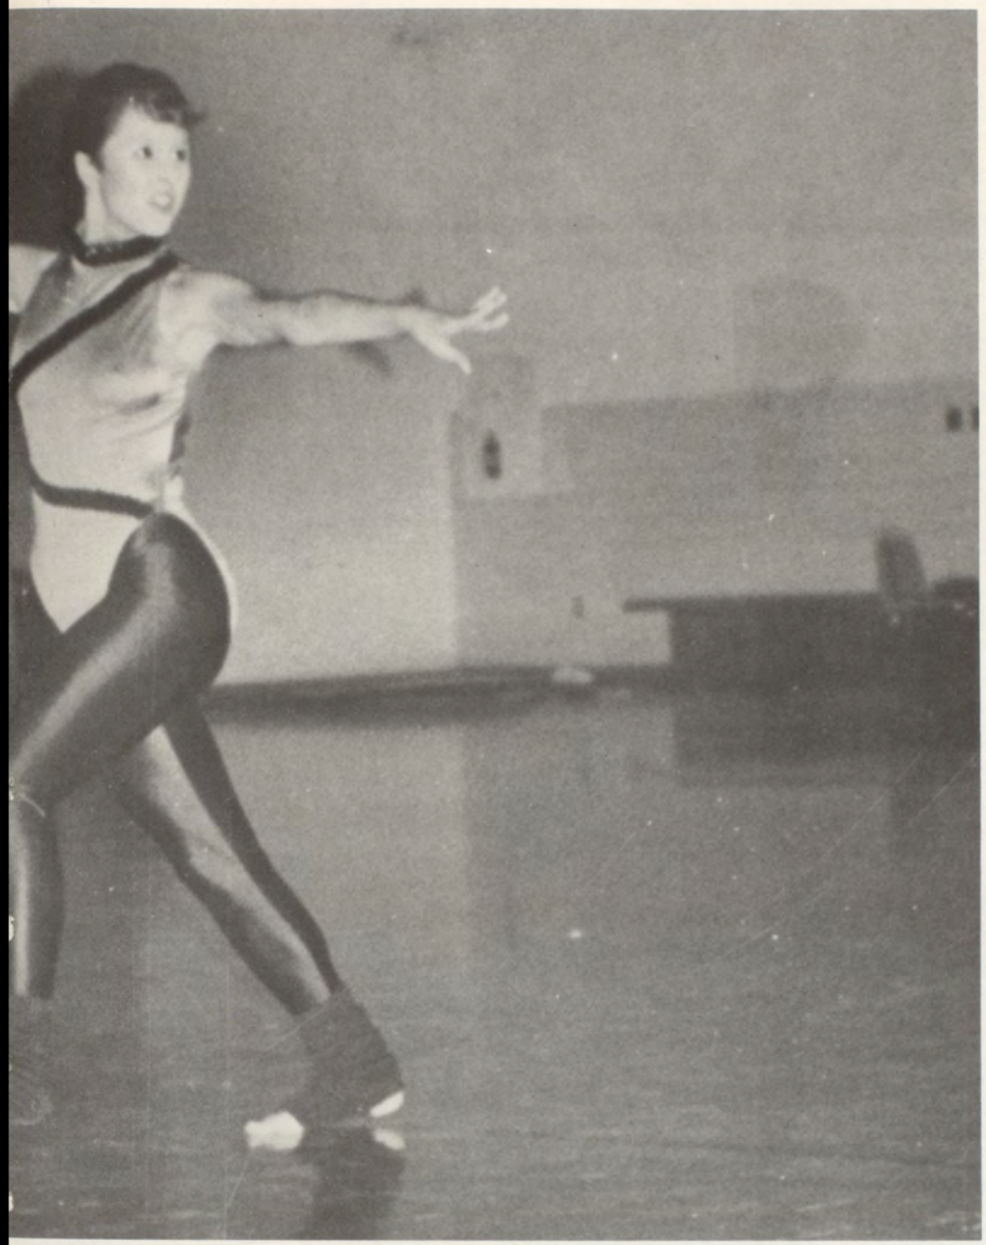

Ending their award winning jazz routine, the Steppers hit their final pose.

Answering a question in the Dating Game, Jonna McCormick hands the microphone back to the host Vanna Beige (Kari Kovar).

Excellence

Lots of hard work and determination was in the hearts and souls of all these A-choir members. Though it seemed most of the work was done behind the scenes, the choir took a giant step towards excellency this year. Many high goals were set. On of the main priorities was to build the reputation of the choir. This was shown when the choir won the homecoming banner contest with their banner that said, "No one flies higher than the THS A-Choir" and "Once in A-Choir, always in A-Choir." These individuals had the ability to pull together as a family, and it showed in their work.

There were many performances during the year. The two main ones were the Yule Tide Caberet at Christmas, and the Spring Time Caberet. These were semi-formal, yet they contained a leisurely atmosphere. Refreshments where served by the choir between sets. Many long and hard practices were put into making these performances a success.

In the essence of new tradition, the choir formed a new show choir of very prestigious members. Tested and chosen from the A-Choir, the group was named "Artistry in Motion." Their main production was a choreographed version of "Camalot."

All in all, the choir had a great year. Much was achieved as many dreams were fulfilled.

Monday Night Excitement

Of all the organizations we had to choose from, Young Life seemed to be the most popular. The reasons were numerous. For one thing, whenever we went to the annual Monday night meeting, we didn't know what to expect. The organizers of Young Life were so imaginative as to have special sessions such as a Battle of the Sexes, the traditional scavenger hunt, a baby night, and, of course,the favorite ski trip to Colorado, which gave us time away from Taylor with our friends for fun and fellowship. No matter what kind of session it was, we were always doing it together and in a Christian way.

For those who wanted to become more involved, campaigners was held. Many of the guys met with Coach Bohls over breakfast for campaigners. "Young Life provided clean fun and Christian fellowship. It also gave me time to be with my friends and have a good time with them. I think everyone should attend," stated Jodie Vanacek.

Young Life was known as a fun and exciting organization, not to metion the biggest. We learned so much about ourselves and others.

A Special Year

With the 1986-1987 schoolyear came a time of learning. In October, the Drama club kept busy by turning an old downtown building into a spook house for Halloween night! All those who participated had fun frightening people and making their Halloween a little more special.

In December, a Christmas production and dinner theatre was held. "A Christmas Celebration" was a big success.

February brought the annual UIL one act play competition. "The Glass Menagerie" was selected, learned and performed this year. Although the play was not selected to advance, the quality of our show was evident when the awards were given. Aaron Maxwell and Scott Allen were selected to Honorable-All-Mention-Star Cast while Melanie Spurgeon was chosen to All-Star-Cst. The cast has and will always cherish the memories of working with "The Glass Menagerie."

"The year ended with a bang as several members traveled to New York. While in the Big Apple, we saw the Broadway hit, "Cats". Other sites we saw included the Empire State Building, the United Nations Building, and the New York Stock Exchange. This truly made our year special.

Acting as Carolers, these actors share the spirit of Christmas with the audience.

Stiff Requirements

As I awaited my turn to be called to light the traditional NHS candle, I thought back to the days of anxiety as I had waited to see if I had indeed been chosen a part of this prestigious organization. I knew my grades had been high enough, but that wasn't the only requirement. Had I been involved in enough other aspects of school and community to be called a leader? Had I shown good character and courtesy toward my teachers and fellow students? I knew that the requirements were stiff, and that every teacher who knew me would vote on my acceptance. Finally, the day had come for the announcement of new members. I bit my lip as the names were called. It seemed the list took forever, but eventually they got to my name. I practically ran down the hall with the other thirty-five students who had been called to the office for pinning ceremonies. Now my name was once again being called, and I walked proudly up on stage to accept my responsibilities as a fully inducted member.

NHS had changed a great deal this year with the addition of two new advisers, Pat Rogers and M E Nelson, to help former adviser, Priscilla Parsons. The club had grown to eighty-two members, and we felt we had our jobs cut out for us. We were leaders, and as such, we had many responsibilities both to ourselves and our school and community.

A Teaching Experience!

Being a part of FTA meant work but there was a lot of fun involved. There was never a dull moment. As usual, we worked hard to get to go to FTA convention in Dallas. We sold our annual carnations on Valentine's Day and the sale was very successful. We sang for the elderly in local retirement homes on Christmas. When time came for Freshman orientation, our group helped decorate and acted as greeters. We also led groups of freshmen on tours throughout the halls during school. The end of the year gave meaning to what Future Teachers of America was all about. It was especially exciting as Seniors showed their talents by helping various teachers from schools other than high school teach their classes. Of course, for some, this was not as easy as it had looked from the other side of the desk. This helped many decide if they really wanted a teaching career. Finally, it was time to give our annual scholarship. Breaths were held as the name was announced. "This year's winner was Stayci Roznavok."

Facing Challenges

Since challenges are probably the hardest thing to face in life, certain women of our school knew that they sooner or later, had to face them. Joining Future Homemakers of America or being a part of HECE helped them learn how to try to conquer such challenges as running a home, helping out in the community, or holding the same job for a certain length of time. They knew that in our society today, you had to make sure you knew a little bit more than the person before you. By joining these classes they knew that they would learn what it took to make in a world today.

"HECE has helped me a lot these last years that I've been in high school. Now that I'm a senior I've learned with me to wherever I may go and use it to my best ability," stated Doris Jones.

Help for the Future

There are so many times people take food for granted and forget where our food comes from. In FFA we knew where it came from and that's why we had so much pride in our animals. We were some of the few who partook in the production of foods. We were also involved in agriculture which helped our lands to grow the most nourishing types of food.

"A lot of us participated in contests and they meant a lot to us. The event we looked forward to the most was the Williamson County livestock show. A whole year of preperation went into this event. We first bought our animals. Then, we nourished them with the best of foods. As time to show drew nearer, we spent hours upon hours washing and grooming them. We got to show off what we had been working at for so long. We were full of pride and joy at these contests," stated Randy Skrhak.

Most of all, FFA helped us for our future. We knew that we would be on our own soon and this class really helped.

Working and Having Fun

Being successful is very important to today's society in the secretarial field as well as others. In order to acheive that success, you must have the needed background to prepare you for the working world. OEA students had that opportunity of gaining this experience. These students were enrolled in classes such as VOE and Word Processing. Both allowed students to obtain training that would help them get a good job while in school or a permanent job after graduation.

OEA not only allowed students to gain working skills — it was fun as well. Being an active member meant that you learned to cooperate and work with others. OEA members had the opportunity of competing in several different contests. They went to Area contests in February and State contest in March. Shelly Machu placed 2nd in Keyboards in the State competition and advanced to Nationals which were held in Des-Moines, Iowa. Shannon Jordan also competed in the Area competition.

The members of OEA worked very hard to raise money for the OEA Scholarship. It was awarded to a student who had done exceptionally well in the program. It was awarded to Deana Mokry.

Paid Education

Being a part of VICA or DECA meant that you chose to work half a day and go to school the other half. VICA was designed for students who were interested in an industrial or health occupation. "VICA was a good way to get good work experience while you are still in high school. It is also a good way to shorten a long school day," stated junior Dean Faught.

DECA, on the other hand, was a course designed for students interested in selling and service-selling occupations. DECA was very educational for me because it helped me to become more responsible and made me feel more independent. It was also great to get out of school for half a day and get paid for it," responded Aaron Riethmayer.

We knew these classes and jobs would help us in the future because we knew how much effort it took as well as responsibility it took and how it felt to have a real job. Our rewards came not only in our paychecks, but also in the knowledge we gained from our jobs.

Making It Seem More Like Home

Although not all students knew exactly what Student Senate did for the school, in some way, most of their lives were affected by this group to a very large extent. Student Senate was the group behind all of the elections, the Christmas party and decorations, the representation of our school at ball games, and the Homecoming activities. They also treated the teachers who had birthdays to cakes in the teacher's lounge. They were one of the most active groups on campus, and yet many people did not even know all of their responsibilities.

This year the group decided to purchase some much needed furniture for the student center. Before school and at lunch, there had been no place to sit except for the floor. The addition of new green couches made the student center appear a little more comfortable, and they were very much appreciated by all. Ann Griffith, president of the organization, stated, "Student Senate gave me the opportunity to make school seem more like home to all of us." Student Senate was a very special club which made the school a much better place to be.

First Hand

For many years, a common foreign language for students was Spanish. The reason why it was so popular among students was because they were interested in learning the ways of history and culture.

Besides this reason the students just wanted to learn how to speak the language that was spoken by so many in our society.

For those who wanted to participate in more than just the class, a Spanish club was offered. This gave them a chance to learn more about the Spanish heritage and actually participate in activities related to the culture. Spanish club held a booth at Local History Day which was put on by the Jr. Historians. Many students had special projects to display. The members who were in the club planned a trip to various areas of Mexico and had a great time actually living what they had learned.

We learned so much from being in such a good club. It was easy to understand why it was so popular.

The Big Event

This year, again, the members of Junior Historians carried on their annual Local History Day. This has always been a big event for Junior Historians. They had one of the best turnouts yet. The entire student center was filled with exhibits from almost every culture in the Taylor area. Many people came from all over to show their exhibits. Many of the students were interested in the history day. The hobbyist and artist from brought examples of crafts and displayed them for the students. The students even got to do some art making for themselves to see how easy and fun it really was. And, of course, they enjoyed getting out of class. The teachers didn't mind letting their students out of class for a while. After all, it was very educating.

Many people found out a lot about their backgrounds and a lot about where their culture originated. The Junior Historians knew they had produced another successful Local History Day and would continue to make them even better.

Viewing the exhibits of Local History Day, John Gipson and Tim Lopez find something interesting about history.

Writing down information, Kelly Spiller prepares to report to his teacher what he saw.

Getting ready to eat the traditional Roman food, Christy Caldwell, Barbara Bruckner, Carrie Schmidt, and Susan Brummett fill their plates.

Learning about the life of the Roman people, Lee Perez and Jodie Vanecek browse through the Latin Club exibit.

Busy As Usual

The Latin Club was very busy and active at THS, as usual. One of the many activities included a fun-filled trip to the Magic Time Machine in Austin where the members enjoyed a "Roman Orgy" ! It was a wild experience for many of those who went.

This year was the first ever for the Latin Club to give a scholarship to deserving senior. All members raised enough money selling gifts for Valentine's Day to award a $200 scholarship which was given to Paul House.

The Ides of March exhibit was also a big success. When asked about the display, Latin teacher, Kaye Schaefer, said, "We had some unique projects which showed much imagination and hard work. The students really did a great job in making this year's exhibit the best ever."

The last event of the year to take place was the annual slave day. Students got a big kick out of seeing what the masters made their slaves do. Some of the masters made their slaves carry their books to class for them. The masters conspired at lunch to make the slaves sing "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" while sitting lined up on the floor of the student center. It was all in good fun and the slaves were excellent sports.

Past to Present

The Mallard staff has been blessed in the past years with numerous honors. It has won in state competition for the past three years. The 1986 Mallard was published with the students in mind. The staff broke many contest rules but still managed to come away with top honors.

The 1987 Mallard staff decided to produce a book that pleased the students as well as followed all the contest rules. Much preperation went into making this yearbook. The editors attended a workshop put on by Taylor Publishing Company during the summer. They learned many new techniques which were sure to improve the looks and content of the book.

A theme was decided on after long hours of contemplation. The theme chosen was very fitting of the Taylor High School Student Body as well as the members on the Mallard Staff. It was, "We've Got Class!"

Hard Work is Rewarded

The Cottonboll was published many times and each time the paper improved. It was obvious because students would line-up each time the paper was sold. The staff strived to put out a paper that the students liked.

As well as being liked by the students, the paper won many awards, such as: Texas High School Press Association All Texas with Special Honorable Mention, Award of Distinguished Merit in Journalism from the ILPC and 1st place with Special Honorable Merit from The American Scholastic Press Association.

Several staff members also recieved awards. Chris Naiver recieved 3rd in News Writing and 4th in Headlines. Mina Patel was honored by 4th in News Writing. Honor after honor only proved what the students already knew. The Cottonboll was the best.

With each new issue, the Cottonboll staff worked to put out the best paper. Their hard work and effort showed through every time. Obviously, their perserverance was worthwhile and appreciated.

Writing a story, Leroy Anderson rushes to meet a deadline.

Our Biggest Smiles

Striving for their best, the Taylor High Twirlers were always willing to practice everyday. They practiced not only in the morning during band, but also after school. Much preparation was needed to execute the difficult routines. Each twirler knew her responsibility was to the audience and that she always had to do her best for them. The audience didn't expect perfection, but the twirlers expected it of themselves, and they achieved it because of their hard work and effort.

Each time one of the twirlers put on her uniform, she put on ger biggest smile. No matter how difficult the routine was, she always had a smile and a look of determination, for the twirler was a performer.

All through the week, the twirlers would practice everyday, drilling each other on their routines. Every Friday night, no matter what the weather, the twirlers were out there smiling and doing their very best.

Go Ducks Go

"Go Ducks Go!" This cheer frequently echoed throughout the stands at games when we were ahead, and even if we were behind. We used this cheer to get the fans and the team fired up, or to keep them fired up.

Yet, being a cheerleader went far beyond cheering. We organized pep rallies, bonfires, and car rallies — any imaginable spirit event, we were behind them all. Keeping the teams fired up was our main function and we did almost anything to insure that our team always had the most spirit. Sometimes firing up the crowd along with the team came easily, but at other times, it was hard for us to cheer up in the worst of times but we just put our feelings aside and kept on cheering.

In preparing for games and pep-rallies, we spent countless hours practicing yells, painting signs, and planning pep rallies.

We devoted hours to making our school a better and more spirited place, because getting fired up was not only our job but our pleasure.

JV Cheerleaders are: Nikki Urbis, Cheryl Chapa, Tammy Moeller, Gracie Gonzales, Jessica Ortiz, Colleen Leschber, and Kim Winkler.

Yelling for the JV Football team, Colleen Leschber, Cheryl Chapa, Wendi Mikulencak, Paula Ortiz and Jessica Ortiz show their spirit.

Fundraisers . . . . . Trips

The German Club had several fundraisers and were able to take many trips. Members could be seen washing cars and having bake sales as well as selling "Quacks-n-Snacks" which raised much money because of its duck theme. Because of our fundraisers, we were able to attend the Wurst Fest in New Braunfels last fall. At Christmas we participated in a German church service. Both members of the club and German speaking parishoners enjoyed the experience. We then had a banquet which was completely organized by the club members. Students in German I and II prepared traditional German foods such as the popular Black Forest Cherry cake. Senior Tiffany Schoenrock said, "This year's banquet turned out really well and was a lot of fun because we did it all ourselves." Mu Alpha Theta held button and sticker sales to promote school spirit and to raise money for our annual scholarship. The night of the awards ceremony, Mu Alpha Theta awarded their annual scholarship to Jonna McCormick, president of the organization.

BEST PICS

These pages are dedicated to the Mallard photographers. Each of the pictures was picked for one reason or another such as; subject, contrast or originality. Each picture had to be taken and printed by the photographer and approved by the photo editor. These are our favorites.

Smiling evilly, John Fontenot practices his electric guitar.

Leaning on a gate, Stuart Strnad works with bulls at Elgin Breeding Service.

Entertaining the students at a pep-rally, Sidney Bucanek plays his drums.

Snap Shots

Taking a break, Kim Felfe, Lisa Taylor, Melissa Limmer, Dawn Jesse and Shiela Crow joke at Wurst Fest.

Acting dramatic comes easy for Stephen Vorwerk and Paul House.

Class Support

For support of our yearbook, newspaper, band, football team, as well as other organizations, many businesses in the Taylor area gladly gave time and lots of money. Also, there were many businesses and organizations in Taylor which gave numerous scholarships. Many activities and organizations would not have been able to function if it weren't for the help of the community.

The yearbook staff at Taylor High School would like to take this time and space to thank you for making this book possible. We hope that we are able to have continued success in years to come. Thank you, the business community of Taylor, for your effort and support.

You can help.

You've heard a lot about the need to conserve electricity and all forms of energy. Not only does conservation help save our nation's precious energy resources, it helps you and your family save money since the cost of energy is a big chunk out of most families' budgets. You can help your family by doing your part — make sure you close doors and windows when the heating or air conditioning unit is on, don't "graze" when you raid the refrigerator — know what you want before you open the door, hot water takes energy — try a shorter shower, and make sure the television or stereo is off when you're through with it. Work with your family to save energy now — you'll help make sure there will be enough for everyone when you start a family of your own.

Having new eating places from which to choose helps give the people of Taylor a variety.

Growing Stronger Every Day

The community has always been very important to the school system. Without their support, many school activities would be mediocre or possibly even non-existent. We salute all businesses and welcome those who are new to Taylor. We take pride in knowing that even with the state economic crunch, our city is still growing. We're alive, well and going strong!

Having fast foods is a necessity to the busy life of most Taylor workers and school people.

Knowing the necessity of keeping fit, many enjoy the new gym facilities.

The cover of the 1987 Mallard has a silver foiled stamp design on a Kelly green textured material over 150 point binders board. The cover was designed by Roseann Matysek and Lisa Krieg. The book is printed on 100 lb. enamel paper. It was published by Taylor Publishing Company of Dallas, Texas, with Jim Anderson as their represenative. The press run was 350 copies. Varden Studios did the senior portraits and Hennington studios did the underclassmen pictures. Palatmo type was used throughout the book with some special headlines in Tramp. Special thanks go to Raj Nadkarni, Trey Keith, Scott Allen, Steven McKnight, Taylor Daily Press, all faculty members, and administrators, as well as all others who contributed to the making of this yearbook.

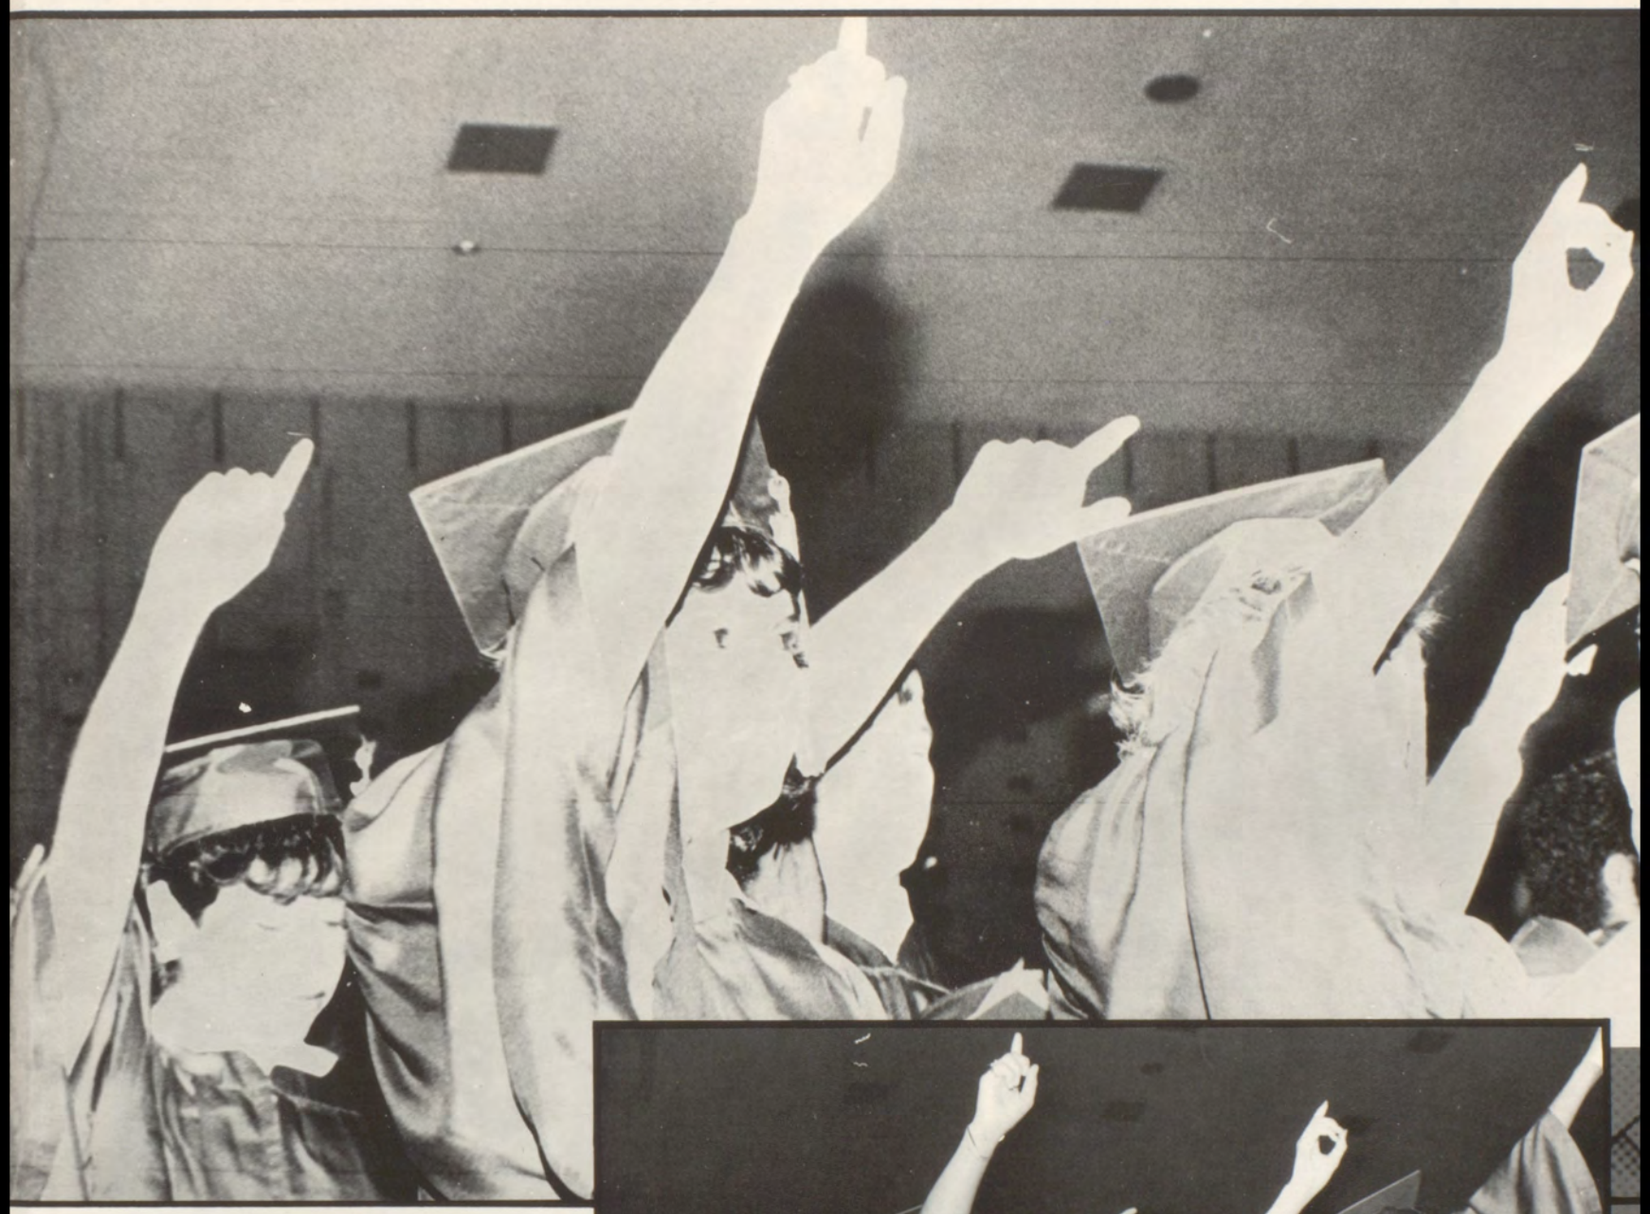

Another Year At An End

Another year was over. Everyone was ready to get out and have a great summer, and most of all not worry about school.

Realizing this was the last year for the seniors, we were sad to see them go. It was time for them to make a new start with their lives. They made many memories here that would remain with them for the rest of their lives. But most of all they'd leave here knowing that there was no doubt about it . . . they had helped give this school class.

Remember These?

As graduation came to a close, we realized our care-free days were fading but . . . our memories would remain in our hearts.

No Doubt About It . . .

We've Got CLASS
