In high school, not everything falls into place. Success takes work. It starts with a drive, a determination, and turns into a passion to pursue the things that we desire. Every victory, every passing grade, every acceptance took hours of blood, sweat, and tears mixed with the constant flood of emotions that comes with high school.

If you really want to know what we're all about, you'll have to dig deeper. You'll have to take a step into the 50 minutes of a national ACDEC competition, the hours of scorching hot football practices in full pads, the days of cooking in an industrial kitchen for actual customers at the Top Flight Cafe, the weeks of working on AP Physics problems so that you can ace the tests, and the months of memorizing monologues in German for the state competition. What you see on the outside isn't everything. There is more to us than meets the eye.

Mission
Clovis, New Mexico

During summer vacation most students made relaxation their top priority, along with spending time with friends, sleeping in late, and traveling. But, for a group of high school students, devoting their time and hard work towards helping others was their main concern.

This group of students were able to help underprivileged kids in Clovis, New Mexico. They stayed for one week at Sandia Baptist Church where they held a Vacation Bible School for around 60 kids. The group slept in Sunday school classrooms on air mattresses because space was limited.

For Josh Schneider (10) the kids were the most memorable part of the trip. "One kid liked me and told me I was his big brother. It was fun when we played hide n' seek, and when we raced go carts," Albert Vasquez (11) was a leader of music during the mission trip and also enjoyed spending time with the kids "My favorite part was teaching the hand gestures to the song Amazing Wonders. I still remember all the hand gestures to the song," Vasquez said.

The trip gave the students leadership and volunteer experience, on top of the chance to be an example for children who were less fortunate. "I learned that you have to reach out to kids and be a good role model because they really look up to you," Lauren Hortenstine (10) said.

Students take thrilling trip to Costa Rica

Over the summer, Libby Fischer (10), John Dupy (10), and Tallie Thompson (10), along with Mrs. Dawn Fischer, traveled 2000 miles away to Costa Rica for a fourteen-day excursion. During the time they were there, the group traveled from town to town, spending two days in each place. They ended their trip on the beach. "The beaches looked gorgeous and pretty. It was paradise," Fischer said.

While there, they experienced many different adrenaline-rushing activities including river rafting, swimming at the beach, feeding monkeys, and zip lining in the rainforest. For one traveler, zip lining did not begin as a good experience. "I was scared of heights! I was scared at first, but then I felt excitement when I was let go," Thompson said.

The group spent an entire day river rafting, which proved to be a rushing experience for the students and sponsor. "You knew that when you're at the end of the river, there's just no turning back. You were off and there were just people falling everywhere!" Mrs. Fisher said.

The group also had a chance to give back to the community they were visiting in Costa Rica. The travelers had the chance to plant a tree to help save the rain forest there. "It was a good experience to be able to give back to the their community, knowing I helped save a beautiful rain forest that is disappearing before our eyes," Fischer said.

Overall, the trip was a riveting experience for the travelers. "It was beautiful and I'd definitely go back. The people were nice and it was a different way of life," Dupy said. --Morgan Cmerek & Lorena Sanchez

"Pop!" sounds the gun; adrenaline pumps through his veins as his legs start the motion that has become second nature to him. He looks around and inhales the atmosphere of accomplishment.

Joshua Villarreal (12), competed in what he considers the greatest accomplishment of his life, the Junior Olympics. "Running is my life. I have dedicated my entire being to this sport, and competing in the Junior Olympics made me feel like the sport no longer defined me, but now I had a chance to define it," Joshua said.

Mariah Ramirez (12), Gabrielle Villarreal (11), and Robert Martinez (10) also signed on the AAU Summer Track League a mere days before school let out. They all planned to practice every Monday through Friday, from 6 p.m to 9 p.m to prepare for the Junior Olympics. Every Saturday was devoted to various competitions, in which each of the athletes placed among the highest possible rankings in the 3000 meter run. Eventually, after several other from the league were eliminated, the final four progressed to the Junior Olympics.

Though the "Fab Five" stole the attention of the world this summer, Taylor has produced its own, "Incredible Four", promising talent that could one day lead to Team USA in the next Olympics. However, what ever their future holds, it has started with the willingness to give every inch of determination in their souls to work for a dream that has now become reality. --Ally Powell

Rise & Shine

With the drastic change in powers after director Jacques Brown resigned, the band program was left under the direction of Scott Simmons. This change was overwhelming for the band and for the new band director.

Last year, the band had to wake up around 6 or so just to make it to practice by 6:45 am, but now they start at 7:15 at the new high school instead of the old high school. "We start with fundamentals and then we work on the drill until 2nd period. It makes for a really long day, especially on Tuesdays because we have evening rehearsals, too," Senior Drum Major, Lorellye Graham (12) said. The new school is a lot farther from the center of town, so some students have had difficulty waking up and getting there on time. The band has had to work around the fact that there are some students who participate in other early morning activities and some also have to go to tutorials for whatever they need to catch up on to remain eligible.

Early morning practices weren't the only thing band members had to adjust to. "It was a major adjustment from Mr. Brown to Mr. Simmons. It was a lot to get used to. He has different teaching methods, but when it really comes down to it he's a really great director and I believe that he deserves as much respect as any other teacher," Juleyda Lopez (10) said.

"The most difficult thing for me is adjusting to the drastic change in leadership and helping the band make the transition. Now, it is more up to the leaders to do more work and to lead the band," Graham said. -- Diana Lepe

With a new athletic director came major changes in the athletic periods. Student athletes had to get accustomed to train for basketball and other sports with other students. When the time had come for the particular sport to be in season, the group had skill days, meaning they would practice doing drills of their sport.

"It's enabling the coaches to have more hands on access with the kids throughout the athletic period. I think it's a great idea, so people can focus more on just one sport. It will help the sport team get better because it's more of an all-year thing instead of just a season," Coach Purser later added.

On the other hand, the girls no longer had skill days during the athletic period. They all did one workout together to improve on strength, speed, and agility.

The changes are really a matter to get used to. "It's like a rush. Instead of doing daily routines, we do multiple stages within a [class] period. It's hard because it has to be on time for you to finish. The minute you get into it, it's... over," the cross-country and track runner Mariah Ramirez (12) said. -- Tyler Hall

For the second year all THS students have received new MacBooks to use in their classes and at home. "The purpose for our Technology Immersion Project is built around student success." We are providing all students with the same hardware and software tools, along with online resources. The software allows students to create many innovative multimedia projects which makes learning more meaningful," Mrs. Sandy Vaughn said.

With 24/7 internet access comes great responsibility. Students are somewhat restricted since the iBoss filter blocks certain web pages, but it remains the students' and teachers' responsibility to use the World Wide Web in support of educational goals rather than as a distraction. "At school I am productive about my research. I am also responsible about the websites I visit," Joey Carmada (10) said.

Though students continue to use their laptops for entertainment purposes after school hours, it seems that during school most of the usage is class-directed. "I use it in class for vocabulary, notes, and iMovie for projects," Chris Vrana(11) said. --Jose Villarreal

We are Family

Tennis starts off season strong

On September 6, the varsity tennis team played a tough match against Killeen, beating the Kangaroos 17 to 2 points, making them 2-0 in team tennis play. "I thought that we came out strong, as opposed to our first team match. We played hard and finished it," Coach Kevin Ramm said.

In team tennis, teams compete for points; one win gives one point to that team. Each team member plays a doubles match and a singles match against the opposing team to earn points. During this particular match, there were seven doubles teams total. "Personally, my partner and I started our doubles match slow, but then we picked it up and won. As far as singles, I played really well, but there wasn't much competition," Lance Morales (12) said.

The team also competed in 14 total singles matches, seven boys' singles and seven girls' singles matches. "I played okay during my singles match, but not as good as I could have. I pulled out the singles win in the end though," Jacob Cmerek (10) said.

For the varsity tennis team, team tennis is more than just a few matches. To them, team tennis makes them more like relatives. "Tennis is like a family; the more matches we play together, the closer we get. That's really what team tennis is all about, acting like a family," Alyx Martinez (11) said.

During the fall season, the varsity tennis team played nine total matches, all at home on their own courts. "We improved with every match we played and from the beginning of the season, we matured and came together as a team," Coach Vicki Hall said.

Chemistry Students make a splash

During Mrs. Rose Palmer's chemistry class, students performed a lab teaching them how to find and measure the volumes and mass of different weights. The students dropped different metals into graduated cylinders and then with the data they collected, calculated the volume and mass. "When I dropped the metal into my graduated cylinder, all the water splashed out," said Jose Salas (10). The students then wrote down their observations and calculations and put the data into a table and a graph.

"I learned a bunch of different masses and volumes of some weights," Andrew Luna (10) said.

"The lab was a little confusing at first, but I understood it better towards the end," Megan Irizarry (10) said.

"It was 3rd and 5 and the play was to my side. I remember going to tackle the back, but I got hit and felt a pop," Bailey said. The trainers and coaches rushed to see if Bailey was okay. "The first thing that came to my mind was that I was paralyzed, and that I let my team down," Bailey said. Bailey was able to walk off the field, and appeared at school on the next Monday wearing a neck brace.

Despite his difficult injury, Bailey began playing football again just a few weeks after his injury. "I felt awesome when I came back to play, and do work to help my team," Bailey said.

Superhero pep rally pumps up students

As the football team prepared to face the Gatesville Hornets at home for their first district game, the students and staff dressed as superheroes for spirit Friday. The superhero school day was ended with a superhero themed pep-rally.

During the pep rally, class competition was fierce. All of the seniors wore masks of all kinds and brought signs and noisemakers. The juniors and sophomores also brought their a-game, bringing signs and horns. As Mr. Nathan Gray ran around the gym, getting the crowd pumped up, the classes competed for the spirit stick, the prize for the most spirited class. Despite the senior's attempt at winning the spirit stick, the freshman came out on top, winning the stick for the first time. "It felt really good to win the spirit stick and beat the seniors," Rachel Vrabel (9) said. The freshmen won because of their loud chanting, large numbers, and use of signs and props.

A game between the principals also took place. Each principal was partnered with a member of the football team and given a football. The football players stood on one end of the gym, while the principals stood at the other. The principals then had to throw the football directly into the football player's hands. Head principal, Mr. Danny Ward, ended up outlasting both Mr. Randy Brown and Mr. Roy Longcrier, throwing the ball from the opposite end of the gym, directly into AJ Devlin's (12) hands. "It was really cool to see how good at throwing a football our principals are. I never would've thought that Mr. Ward would last the longest," Devlin (12) said.

After a successful pep rally, the football team lost in a hard fought game against the Hornets.

Class RINGS

September 19

In October, many juniors and seniors begin the process of ordering class rings. "Getting my ring was a motivational thing because it told me I was so close to graduating, and I've always liked them because I see my grandparents wearing theirs, and I wanted to be a part of that," Mary Nardecchia (12) said.

The students had many options in customizing their class ring. They could choose the style, the color, the cut, and sides for their very own ring. "I like that we get to customize our own rings because its something that I'll have forever and it shows what I did in highschool," Kacey Christiansen (11) said. Symbols of sports, clubs, and graduation years could be cut into the side of the ring to make each one personal.

Life after High School

Students aspiring to go to college had a whole day dedicated to higher education on September 27th. On this day, representatives from colleges all over the state and around the country came to recruit students. "You looked around at different booths that have colleges, and see which one you like best," Amy Janecka (12) said.

Throughout the day, upperclassmen were called into the gym by class and last name. They then were given time to browse the different colleges and talk to representatives. Each booth held brochures and information about that specific college.

Fifty colleges appeared at this fair, including UT, A&M, and Texas Tech. "I learned about UTSA, UT, and UT Arlington. I was basically asking which had the best kinesiology program; it made me want to go to UT Arlington," Erik Nunez (12) said.

Students from surrounding school districts also came to browse the College Fair. Students at the fair represented Thrall, Granger, and Thorndale. "It was a good opportunity for al the small schools and I think the turn out was really good," Ashley Smith (12) said.

Tradition continues

September 25th

Among the many dances that the team learns, one of the most memorable is their halftime kick-line performance. Since the sixties, the Hi Steppers have carried on this tradition, and many Hi Steppers old and young, have kicked to the school fight song.

"It is the same kick dance, just modified over the years. My aunts did it, and the Hi Steppers before us. I am carrying on the tradition," Lauren Ochoa (12) said.

During the summer, the first thing the new Hi Steppers learn is the kick line dance. Colonel Bethany Matthys (12) went over the dance with the seasoned officers and the majors break up into their small groups and teach the new Hi Steppers.

"This dance is the right of passage for the team. You learn it and your are officially apart of the team," drill team director," Mrs. Wallace said.

The team practices the kick line daily in the gym and on Fridays with the marching band on their practice field. On game days, they wear their boots and hat onto the practice field.

Going out onto the field, the crowd awaits the kick-line dance from the team who carries on the tradition.

"It is something everyone knows us for," Matthys said.

Changing the Game

First VB Win of District Play

After starting the district season 0-4, the Lady Ducks came out fired up to play Navosata at home. They were determined to change the outlook of their season. "We all believed in each other more and stayed positive," Alexis Burnett (11) said.

They started out strong, winning the first game 25-16. The momentum changed though when Navasota took the lead in the second game. "The momentum of the game affects us a lot if one person is focused we all our, if one person is goofing off it spreads to all of us," Burnett said. The Lady Ducks let the game slip to Navasota with a score of 9-25.

After this, the girls wanted to make sure they clinched the match in the end. Bouncing back in the third game to take a huge lead over Navasota. The Lady Ducks took the game with a huge score of 25-7.

Knowing exactly what they had to do to win the fourth game, they kept their ambition going. However, Navasota wasn't going to give up the game easy. The girls fell short in the end losing the game 22-25.

Forcing a fifth game and final game in the match. "There was a lot of pressure awaiting the fifth game. We try to think of it as the first to erase all the pressure that it all comes down to this game," Burnett said. The game stayed close through out. The Lady Ducks pulled out the win in the end with a score of 15-13. The girls got the 'W' overall against Navasota, clinching their first district win.

Flying in Physics 10/4

Pre-AP Physics students walked outside carrying assorted animals, each with legs made of elastic. With careful precision, the students launched their animals by pulling back the legs and then releasing. The popular lab, known as the "Flying Monkey" Lab, involved propelling special stuffed animals at different angles and recording the distance that they traveled at each angle.

To get into character for the lab, physics teacher Mrs. Jean Gifford dressed as a witch. "(It's) because there are flying monkeys and it's like the Wizard of Oz," Mrs. Gifford said.

After collecting their data, students returned to the classroom, and answered several questions over the experiment. These included how high the sock puppet flew and at which angle, at which angle they flew the furthest, and calculations for initial velocity and the maximum of the flight path.

One student learned a rather unique lesson from the experiment. "Shooting flying inanimate objects at people is funny," Madison Penn (11) said.

Marching in Austin

The band endured many long hours of practice, and on Saturday October 6th, it finally paid off. At the Capital City Marching Festival in Austin, the band placed 2nd overall, finishing right under their rival, Wimberley. "I've played in a contest before, but honestly I was still a little scared. As I was stepping out on the field though, I knew I had to give it my all, because I didn't want to come back without a trophy," Sarahi Lepe (10) said. Although the group as a whole brought home silver, the color guard and the percussionists each brought home gold. "I thought we played very well, and I'm happy with our score, being a percussionist," Philip Gray (10) said.

This was the band's first contest of the year. Usually the Capital City contest is their second contest, but unfortunately, they didn't get to play in the Hendrickson Preview that took place in late September. Since this was their first contest, they had to practice and practice to get their marching routine down. The band practiced Monday through Friday starting at about 7:15 in the morning, and every Tuesday, they practice at night from 6:30 to 8:30. A lot of work goes into a performance, and the band puts in a lot of effort to work towards improvement.

Although they were well prepared, the freshmen were a little on edge with it being their first contest in the marching band. "I was really nervous at first but it wasn't that bad when I got out on the field. It was a lot of fun and I can't wait for more contests," Kacie Vanacek (9) said.

Cross Country @ Manor

On Friday October 5th, the boys and girls cross country teams traveled to Manor, and competed in a 5K. Both varsity teams dominated the course, and brought home the championship plaque.

The varsity girls had no problem running 1.2 miles more than they usually do. They put the longer distance out of their heads, and did what they do best, run. Out of 52 competitors, four girls placed in the top ten. Gabby Villarreal took 3rd, Amber Vrabel came in 4th, Katie Bryant placed 5th, and Autumn Jensen finished in 6th.

Even though they were short two team members due to injuries, all six of the varsity boys took home medals. Nick Dominguez, Albert Vasquez, Bryan Martinez, Josh Villarreal, Edgar Carrera, and Tyler Jaecks placed in the top 11.

The JV teams struggled against a field of large schools, and without the help of some of their key runners. Individually, Tanner Parker placed 5th, and Lynsie Patschke took home the bronze. -Savannah Kaspar

Parent Appreciation Night

After a long season of volleyball starting all the way back in the first week of August, Freshmen and Junior Varisty teams thanked their parents for everything they did for them to be able to play volleyball.

The underclassmen Lady Ducks relied on their parents much more than the Varisty girls did because the younger girls did not have their drivers' licenses to get them to and from practices. "I depended on my parents to take me to games and practices. I also looked at them for support and encouragement," Cynthia Lopez (9) said.

The Lady Ducks gave out potted pansy plants instead of the traditional single flower. The girls decorated their very own decorated pot planter to specialize the gift. "We put stickers and wrote our name on it. When I handed mine to my parents, I told them 'thank you for everything that you did for me,'" Lopez said.

Halloween Treats

HOSA and Latin club took advantage of Halloween by selling sweet treats to student and faculty.

HOSA sold chocolate covered pretzels to raise money for shirts, field trip, and a blood drive. "We made about 200 bags. Each bag has 4 pretzels and some bags have 8 smaller pretzels. We came one Sunday to the school at 2 p.m. and worked for an hour and a half making the pretzels," said Mady Combs (10).

Halloween Lolli-grams were sold by Latin club to fund their field trip at the end of year. "I made up the lolli-grams for Halloween, because some people do candy-cane grams for Christmas and figured that it would be good to shake it up a little bit. I also wanted to do this because people love giving and receiving things," Minerva Alderete (11) said. Students got a taste of Halloween before school was out with both clubs having trememdous success selling the treats.

Day of the Dead

11/2 Spanish classes paint faces

Dia de los Muertos is a Mexican holiday and celebration that takes place from October 31 to November 2. It is a time in which those of Hispanic heritage hold celebrations in remembrance of those who have died. The holiday is filled with flowers, parades, and skeletons. In honor of the Day of the Dead, the Spanish classes painted skulls on their faces.

"I told my class what Day of the Dead is and that this year we were going to paint faces. They seemed really excited about it and then the day we had face painting around 200 people showed up to my class at various times of the day and not everyone was even in a Spanish class," Mr. Jose Silva said.

Students could have various parts of their faces painted to look like decorated skulls. Throughout the day, students with white skeleton faces could be found around school. Along with paint, some students had jewels decorating their faces.

Each student had a different experience with the face painting. "I didn't mind getting half my face painted, but when they were actually putting the paint on, I hated them putting the black on over my eye, because I was scared they were going to poke my eye with it. Still, I think it was a pretty cool experience," Anne Lucas (10) said. Lucas only had half her face painted, because her friend had the other half. It took two periods to paint her face and for the photography students to take photos of her.

Overall, the face painting was a learning experience for Spanish students, as well as the entire school. "We will definitely have this again next year. The students really enjoyed the change and it was a nice experience for everyone," Mr. Silva said. --Victoria Snyder

Subvarsity Season Ends

Both the JV and Freshman football teams both played their last game against Navasota on Thursday, November 8th. With winning records, both teams went into the game confident. "We felt good going into that game, [we had] lots of energy. We felt very confident we a had a good team this year," Andy Garza (11) said. Despite their high hopes, the subvarsty teams left the field disappointed, each losing to the Navasota Rattlers.

Both teams played hard fought gamess, the JV only coming up one touchdown short of a win. "We were so close to winning, which made it even harder after the game. We played our hearts out and left everything we had on the field," Ethen Espinoza (10) said.

Though finished the season with heavy hearts, the team members had high hopes for the next season. "For it being our last game, it disappointed me because we could have done better, but I'm ready for next season," Jared Ochoa (9) said. --Tyler Hall

Mock Elections 11/5

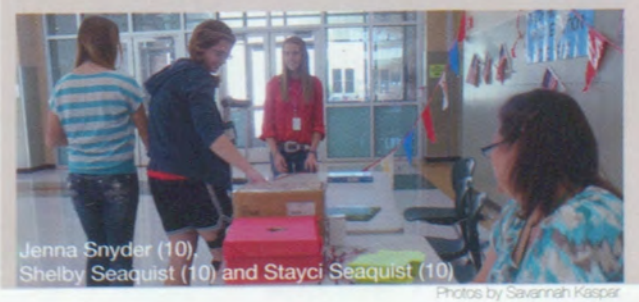

On Election Day, a mock election was held to determine the Presidential candidate that the student population prefered.

Senior stundents made posters on both candidates. "Going from the way students chose their posters, I [thought] Obama [would] win," Mrs. Maureen Gray said.

Some students had a different view on who would win. "(I voted for) Romney, because I don't like Obama. He's spent tons of money on things like stem cell research, or on healthcare," Amy Janecka (12) said.

Being a poll of only one school, some would say the vote was not a good representation of the nation's view. "[It is not a good representation] because Taylor has a high Hispanic population, which is disproportionate to the number of whites [in America], and Hispanics tend to vote Democratic," Mrs. Gray said.

In the end, the results were approximately 66% in favor of Obama, 34% in favor of Romney, and 1% of the vote was won by a write in, Coach James Proctor. --Dominic Elizondo

Football team wins playoff game

After months of practice and learning a new play system, the varsity football team made it to the state playoffs for the second year in a row. With most of the offensive and defensive line and most of the team being seniors, experience played a vital role in helping the Ducks win. Along with experience, the seniors on the team brought motivation to the team. "We wanted it more, we wanted to be different from the other classes," Dantrel Hargers (12) said.

The team played Waco La Vega, a state ranked team, in the first round. The ducks went into the game as the underdog but proved to be the dominant opponent. The La Vega Pirates scored a touchdown on each opening drive in the beginning of the halves. Despite the Pirate's strong offense, the Duck's defense held up and forced La Vega to pass. Fredrick Kerley (12) had two interceptions, preventing two possible Pirate touchdowns. The team's offense also proved to be a force to be reckoned with. Late in the game, quarterback, Jeremy Snyder (12), passed the ball to Reagan Fishcer (12) for a game-changing touchdown. The football team beat Waco La Vega 17-14, kicking the Pirates out of the playoffs. "Honestly it was the best feeling ever, last year in the first round and this year we won. I cried [after we won] because I never have another chance to play with the team, my brothers, again," Mauricio Camarillo (12) said.

The following week, the varsity team played the Carthage Bulldogs in Corsicana. The team fell to the Bulldogs 56-21. Despite the disappointing second round loss, the win against La Vega was the first win in the playoffs since 1994. --Barron Hunt

Turkey Tradition

Each year, on the day before school is released for Thanksgiving break, all of the girls in the athletic program participate in a flag football competition called the Turkey Bowl. The annual Turkey Bowl is a longstanding tradition within the girls athletic program. "[The Turley Bowl] is a reward for many hard week in off season," Coach Shelly Cobb said.

On Thanksgiving, the two teams battled it out in warm weather. The juniors and freshmen wore all black while the seniors and sophomores wore camouflage. After an hour of intensity, tackling, and running, the senior and sophomore team came out on top and were awarded the legendary Turkey Bowl trophy filled with candy. "To win, we worked dtogether and blocked for each other. [Winning was important to us] because it was our last Turkey Bowl, so we had to make it memorable," Mariah Ramirez (12) said. --Morgan Cmerek

Trucks & Calculus

When a lawyer addressed Coach Kevin Ramm with a math problem, he solved it and then proceeded to ask his AP Calculus class to also determine the answer. "I specifically thought it related to what we are learning about functions and their derivatives," Coach Kevin Ramm said.

Coach Ramm was given the background information that a car went from zero to sixty miles per hour in eight seconds. The class was to determine the distance the car could have traveled in that time frame.

After using physics equations and the mathematical process, the class was able to solve the problem. Once they calculated this distance, the class tested it out in Coach Ramm's truck."It was fun testing a real life problem out by using math and physics kinematic equations. It was cool helping the lawyer out," Griselda Morales (12) said.

Coach Ramm walked out the distance on a straightaway next to the school. The calculus class stood on the sidewalk and Coach Ramm tested their results in his truck. One student used their phone as a timer to time the run of the test. Coach Ramm didn't come close to the actual speed but was able to prove the calculations right. "We proved that our calculation was actually fairly close. We proved that we had found the correct distance in the classroom," Coach Ramm said. -Lynsie Patschke

Spreading Christmas Cheer

The annual Christmas parade in town is a tradition during the holiday season. Dozens of floats fill Main Street covered in tinsel, lights, and other decorations. Different clubs and groups make floats and are judged on the decorations. Many students and organizations from the school participated in the parade, making and riding floats.

The Taylor Athletic Booster Club was among those with a float in the parade. High school athletes filled the decorated trailer and waved to spectators lining the streets. "It was pretty cool, I went because of tennis. There were a lot of people there and downtown seemed really crowded," Seth Lopez (10) said.

Both the band and the Hi-Steppers also walked in the parade. "I enjoyed the parade. It was fun being part of that event but it was very hot. I liked just being a part of the band for my last chance," Nathan Dunn (12) said.

Even some teachers participated in the parade. Coach Shelli Cobb was on the float for her church and was dressed as an angel while her children were sheep. "I think it's a great way to get our church's name out there and get people to come visit. [Our float] got first place in our division," Coach Cobb said. Mrs. Maureen Gray was also in the parade, walking alongside First United Methodist Church's float dressed as a Biblical villager. "It was a really good one this year. There were more entries than the past year," Mrs. Gray said.

Others didn't participate in the parade, but watched from the sidewalk. "There were a lot of people crowded around the streets, but the parade was fun. I saw a lot of people from school and I thought it would of never ended because of how many people were in it," Trevor Sherrill (10) said.

Knitting Club

Audrey Harris (11), Autumn Stabeno (11), Mrs. Kristina Tellez

While in Latin class one day, students Autumn Stabeno (11) and Minerva Alderete (11) were talking about learning how to knit. They knew Mrs. Kristina Tellez, Latin teacher, could knit and had the idea to start at knitting club. "Minerva and I mentioned how it would be cool to have a knitting club, but we didn't take it really seriously until the next day when we thought we should really do this," Stabeno said.

The clubs first meeting in December sparked the attention of more students as Mrs. Tellez taught the group that how to knit. The club members learned the basics of knitting , such as how to cast on ad the knit stitch. "There were more students interested in the club than I thought would be which is a good thing. I think knitting is a skill that should be kept around," Mrs. Tellez said.

Mrs. Tellez had been knitting for seventeen years and thought it was a good idea because it gives students something to do. "It is nice to have crafty talents because I can do them for the rest of my life," Stabeno said.

Elizabeth Torres (9) is among one of the club members that is eager to learn to knit. She would like to learn this skill so she can make things for her friends. "Most people don't know how to knit but it is actually really cool," Torres said. -Lynsie Patschke

Outscoring Llano

Taylor took on Llano at home on December 18th. "The game was really physical in the shoot out, and it was really aggressive in the playing," Tim Bailey (11) said. It ended up being a close game, but Taylor came out on top. "I was truly excited, and enjoyed playing. We played as a team, but we could have shot better, and we could have gotten more rebounds," Elijah Gault (12) said. The final score to the game was 63 to 50. "It was a team win. We had to stay focused and just play," Robert Martinez (10) said.

Holiday Harmony

Choir's Christmas Concert

The Taylor High School choir put on a Christmas concert at the Taylor Brethren Church on Thursday, December 13th. They were accompanied by the Taylor Middle School choir and performed several classic Holiday songs. Both choirs were under the direction of Laurie Ebarb.

Anyone was welcome to attend the concert and enjoy the holiday music. "Our purpose was just to spread the Christmas cheer and make everyone feel the Christmas spirit," Rebekah Pircher (11) said.

A few numbers performed at the concert included "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year," "Silent Night," "Breath of Heaven," and "Winter Wonderland." "My favorite part was watching the guys do "Winter Wonderland" because they did a really cute dance with candy canes and top hats," Pircher said.

The choir groups performed twice, at both a Winter and a Spring concert. -Kacey Christensen

Ikkicon 12/28-30

Over Christmas break, Rebekah Pircher (11) and a friend went to Ikkicon, a pop culture convention (mainly focused on Anime and Japanese culture) where many people gather and dress in costume as their favorite characters from shows and videogames. "We got there around 9 or 10 in the morning and left at 7 at night. We stayed for a long time," Pircher said. Dressed as the 11th doctor from Doctor Who, Pircher was able to watch others participate in fun activities and portray their characters to the fullest.

"My favorite part about Ikkicon was being able to dress up, and seeing the creativity and resourcefulness of people used in their costumes. Some were very elaborate. I really enjoyed the Sebastian and Ciel costumes from Black Butler that I saw. I really hope I can go again next year," Pircher said. --Nami Wu ZAP stands for "Zeros Aren't Permitted," and is a new policy that was created to help students keep up with their grades. If a student didn't turn in a paper on the correct due date, they received a ZAP, and were required to attend morning tutorials.

"I do not agree with ZAP because it allows the teachers to give more work because us students have to do it. It's not helping me get work done but making me feel rushed. I didn't think they would be this strict," Alyssa Hanacik (9) said.

"I don't think it's a good idea because it's a waste of time. I don't think it's helped because it doesn't help me keep up with work," Breanna Clifton (9) said.

Though some students disagree with ZAP, it was designed to keep their grades up and to get rid of zeroes. The ZAPs were designed to help keep the students on track and to help them catch up on work

Bieber Fever

On January 12th, two Beliebers from Taylor dreams came true. Tallie Thompson (10) and Libby Fischer (10) saw Justin Bieber in concert for the first time.

For Christmas, Thompson's parents gave her 2 tickets to see Justin perform in San Antonio at the AT&T Center on his Believe Tour.

"On Christmas day, Tallie came over to give me my present. It was just a piece of paper that said 'You're going to see Justin Bieber on January 12th!' and I was so excited! I think Tallie was more excited for me to open it though; she was crying and screaming," Fischer said,

After a long wait of three weeks, the day finally came for the girls to see the star in concert. "Before the concert started, my thoughts were mainly about the thousands of screaming girls. I didn't really want to get a headache," Fischer said.

Cody Simpson and Carly Rae Jepson were the opening acts for Bieber. "I've never really listened to Cody Simpson, so while he was performing I went and bought a t-shirt. But Carly Rae Jepson was really good, she put on a great performance," Thompson said.

When the moment came, Thompson was screaming at the top of her lungs.

Justin Bieber came out from the ceiling wearing a huge pair of wings.

"In a couple of words, the concert was amazing," Fischer said. "He sounded so good, and just like he does on his CD's." --Ashlynn Volek

Dark Ages 1/22

Through a creative project, Mrs. Rowe's AP English seniors delved into finding out what the medieval era was really like. These students were required to open up their imagination, and create a video with a medieval storyline.

"The greatest strength we had in making this video was making people laugh, I learned that riding a broom stick as a horse is a lot funnier than you would think," Abril Villalobos (12) said.

In fact most students took a humorous approach in the making of their productions, and found that some school projects could actually be entertaining.

Though an element of fun can come along with dressing in silly costumes in talking funny, some students realized that making a video was not an easy task. "My weakness throughout this film was acting, if I learned anything I learned to never become an actor," A.J. Devlin (12) said.

"The students have produced these wonderful medieval videos, and I'm extremely proud of them. It seems like they get better and better every year," Mrs. Rowe said. - Ally Powell

Brenham Select Cup

Duck Soccer becomes a team

The soccer team came out to redeem themselves at the Brenham Select Cup after losing to Wimberly 0-1 earlier that week. With 32 teams attending the tournament, the team knew they had to bring their A-game. "We wanted to show that we were better than how we played against Wimberly and make a name for ourselves," Steven Alonso (11) said.

The team started out play at the tournament agaisnt Willis JV winning 4-2. The momentum of winning helped change their spirits on the outlook of their early season play. "When we won, we had our hopes up to beat the next team. We were ready to try our best in the next game," Gabriel Reyna (11) said.

The momentum carried into their next game agaisnt Yetaz Prep. Unfortunately, the momentum didn't keep them soaring through the game. They fell 3-2 to their opponent in a tight game.

Brenham B was their next opponent at the touranment. Battling back and forth with each other to score the next goal was the tempo for most of the game. "We were confident that we would win, but there were a lot of injuries and we were tired," Salvador Trujillo (10) said. The ducks finally fell to Brenham B, 0-1, after giving it everything they had.

Overall from the touranment the team gained playing time and time to work on their skills together. "Looking back we learned to put God first and play a team and not individuals," Alonso said.

A History of PRIDE&HONOR

Taylor High School hosted its annual Black History Month Assembly on Friday, February 15, in the school gym. There were several guest speakers, student speakers and performers that participated.

Students from THS performed poetry, dances and speeches for the assembly to honor Black History Month. Mia Bowens (11) contributed to the cause by performing an interpretive dance. She described the experience as a way to express herself in front of her classmates.

Other students such as Brannon Washington (11) expressed themselves verbally. Washington wrote and performed a poem for the assembly which he entitled "I Have a Dream Too". His poetry was not only a form of expression, but an inspiration to his fellow students.

"I wanted to share my view on the world today because I feel there are some things that go on in our everyday lives that we just don't realize, such as kids growing up without both parents and small acts of racism that take place. I expressed myself by putting my thoughts and feelings into a poem that I thought would make a difference and expressed it to my peers," Washington said. - Kacey Christiansen

"My team and I participated in the Academic Decathlon, where they basically test your knowledge in all subjects. They time you, too. We went in with the intention of beating the other team that beat us in regionals and to improve our personal scores.

At the end, we earned ourselves 3rd at State and 3rd in the Super Quiz and each of us were awarded with $500 in scholarships. I got nine medals and 3rd place in the scholastic division, with $1500 in scholarships after that.

It took a lot of hard work and determination."

Culinary Throwdown

Thousands of Americans are entertained by watching Emerald, Paula Dean, and Rachael Ray do what they do best, cook. However, Taylor High School also has a group of students that cooking is what they do best. The Top Flight Café has been a major success since the move to the new high school. The Top Flight students showed off their cooking skills in a competition against experienced cook and Assistant Principal, Cassandra Ricks for the second year in a row.

"I don't consider myself a chef, but I cook as a hobby. I have been cooking since high school. My grandfather was a cook in the Navy, so I learned a lot of recipes and tips and tricks from him that helped me become a better cook," Mrs. Ricks said.

The Top Flight members were in groups of two, and each group including Mrs. Ricks prepared their own original recipe. The only requirements were the use of the ingredients chicken, strawberries, and hominy, and the dish had to be prepared in no more than an hour.

After a seemingly short hour of constructing delicious creations, librarian, Diann Fox, had the difficult task of selecting the best dish.

Unfortunately, a few short minutes after the judging, Mrs. Ricks claimed the winning dish for the second year in a row. Veronique Green (12) and Valerie Reyes (12) came in second, and Nelson Rincon (12) and Selena Castillo (12) placed third.

"It was difficult trying to cook with hominy, because we didn't even know what it was and how we should use it. However, after some discussion with Mrs. Martin we decided to make a jam with the strawberries and hominy," Joshua Villarreal (12) said.

"We had a lot of fun, and it was a great way to learn different aspects of cooking," Villarreal said.

Despite Mrs. Rick's win, the Top Flight students were still able to have a good time, and take away knowledge to continue the success of their restaurant. - Ally Powell

Flour Babies 2/21

Mrs. Susan Sumpter's Child Development classes made flour babies and carried them around for a week to simulate the effort required to care for a child full-time.

The assignment included at least one late-night phone call to Mrs. Sumpter in which the students "had to tell her the baby woke up--then we had to call back 15 minutes later to tell her it went back to sleep," Nancy Diaz (9) said. "Ms. Sumpter thought it was funny that we had to wake up and call her, but she didn't answer because she was asleep! We had to leave her a voicemail."

Student opinions on the project varied. Taylor Sweet (11) thought "it was a hassle to carry around" the baby all week. Taylor had some difficulties with his baby during lunch, and "it has a big hole where the head got cut open," he said.

"It's embarrassing. Don't have kids, that's what I learned," Anya Terry (9) said. But since Anya's flour baby was in perfect condition, her grade was likely to be higher than Sweet's.

Meanwhile, Monica Ramos (9) thought the project was not so bad. Ramos said. "It was easy! I just learned how to take care of babies," Ramos said. -Melanie Catuogno

Graduation 31

"I'm excited because I'll be going to Tarlton University in Stephenville.

I guess it hit me that I'll be graduating around second semester. I won't be here; I'll actually be far away from Taylor. I'll miss just seeing everyone all the time." -Justin Vaden (12)

3/2 Eagle Scout

"I had to go up through all six ranks, and be active in my troop for six months after life rank. Then I had to plan and construct an Eagle project. We removed 15 dead trees from Murphy Park and replanted 11. I felt a sense of accomplishment when I became an Eagle Scout."

Sweeping the Competition

Soaring over their opponents, James Arellano-Cortez (9), Autumn Stabeno (11), and Minerva Alderete (11) took 2nd in Social Studies UIL. The team swept the competition in mutliple choice questions and essay prompt over social studies.

"We read the book for the subject and studied for the test we know we would take," James Arellano-Cortez (9) said. The team studied for the test intensely over a week period. "The test was difficult, but we did well. I was nervous, but after I thought we did pretty good," Cortez said.

Though the team will not be advancing on to another competition, they were satisified with their results. "I expected to do that good because we worked hard for it," Cortez said.

Hands on Learning

Different teaching techniques

Teachers use different approaches to teaching core classes. Math and Science teachers include labs into their curriculum to change the learning experience. "Labs are always included into our teaching plans because we feel hands on experience helps to enhance learning," Mrs. Leah Ancell said.

Coach Kevin Ramm's Math Modeling class did an elevation and distance lab. The class measured various objects in the main hall with a protactor, string, straw, and washer. This allowed them to find the elevation height of the various objects. "We were measuring distance to find out the height of an object that was taller than us. After we were done measuring we had to convert the feet into inches," JoséVillarreal (11) said.

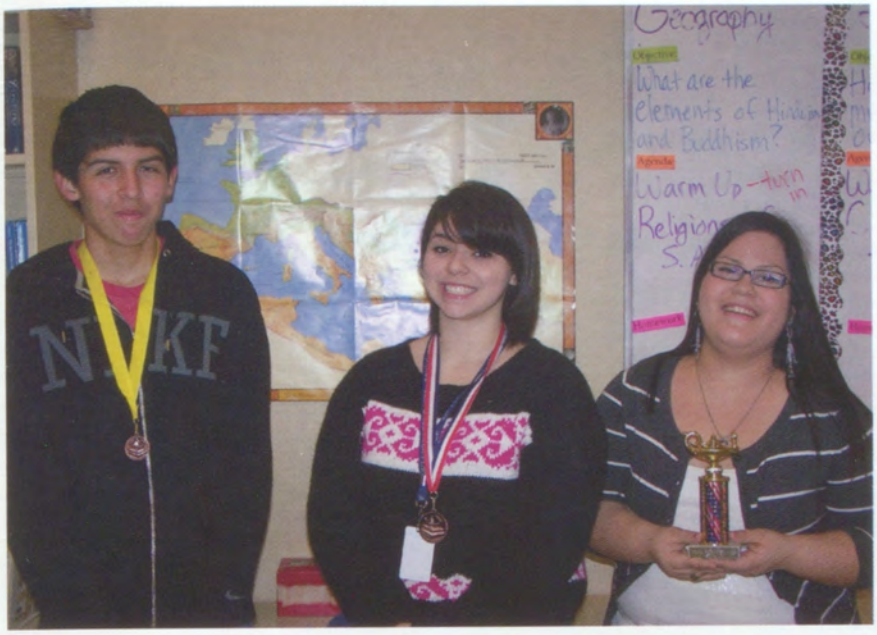

The experiement brought a new angle to learning. "Doing labs instead of paper work is always better because you're not just sitting theere being bored, falling asleep. You're doing work hands on while learning about it. I think you learn much more by hands on type of work instead of getting lectured about it," Villarreal said.

Not only did the math department include labs into their curriculum, but the science deparment did as well. Mrs. Ancell's chemistry classes experienced super-saturation first hand with a lab that included using a hot plate, borax, pipe cleaners, and boiled water.

"We boiled the water and borax. Then we put our pipe cleaner it," Trevor Sherill (11) said. At the end of the lab the students ended up with crystals that were made from the mixture. "The experience was fun and easy to make," Sherill said.

SPRING BREAK

Taking on Mexico

3/11

Ms. Traci O'Quinn had the oppurtunity to take a trip into Mexico to host at the International House in Mexico City. She toured Teotihuacan, a pre-Aztec city and an anthropology museum. And throughout the whole week, she only spoke Spanish.

"It was an amazing trip. I really enjoyed the great view after the climb," Ms. O'Quinn said.

JOB HUNT

Cody Oberwegner (11) went job-hunting over the break, going to every business in Taylor and filling out applications.

"No one had called me back yet. I had mixed emotions about getting a job; I was excited about taking this step in my life, but a little nervous to see how I did at it," Oberwegner said.

When he turned in an application to the Sirloin Stockade, he was asked to go in for an interview and got a job as a part-time server. --Cody Oberwegner

It's a Girl!

Mrs. Rose Palmer was happy to give birth to her new baby girl, Rori Jean Palmer, who weighed 8 lb. 4 oz. Her due date was February 22, but Rori took her time and arrived just over two weeks later.

"I'm so glad Rori is finally here. She was worth the wait!"

DisneyLand + California Adventures

On March 8, Jacob Kopit (11) had already flown to Long Beach, California.

"My grandpa picked us up, then we drove to Orange County. That was the first day," Kopit said.

On Wednesday, he and his family went to Disneyland. They watched the fireworks show that started at roughly midnight. After that, on Thursday they went to California Adventures which is just across from the Disneyland Park.

"There was one ride that they took down. Now there's a new one called Goofy's Sky School, but my favorite ride has to be Pirates of the Caribbean. We rode pretty much all the rides and took a lot of picturest. A couple of my friends asked if I could try to take pictures of all the Disney Princesses--every single one of them. I'm pretty sure I got them all," Kopit said.

The vacation wasn't yet over, because on the last day of the trip they headed straight for the beach.

After the fun came to an end, Kopit concluded, "I think the whole trip was fantastic. We got to be with the family and I had the chance to meet my uncle's new puppy."

A Gig @ SXSW

Anthony Hebert (10) and his band, "Of Silence and Solitude" played from 4 to 5:30 on the corner of Neches and 6th Street.

The day of the show was really hectic and stressful. Being super-tired, they had problems with the directions and where to unload equipment, having to walk two blocks to the venue carrying it all.

"We did great with our stage presence and everything was on point. In all honesty, I wasn't that nervous. I'm always confident in everything I do. If I can't do it with all my heart and energy and enjoy it like nothing else, then I shouldn't be doing it. I'm very confident in my music and also that my band would play to perfection," Hebert said.

The Mud Run

Bailey Talley (10) and Maddie Ward (11) participated in the Dirty Girl Mud Run in Austin. Dirty Girl's mission is to inspire women to step outside of their comfort zone and to create meaningful partnerships their participants benefit from, like the National Breast Cancer Foundation. In 2012, they provided them with over $250,000 in support.

"We went through obstacles, cargo nets, and did some rope climbing," Ward said. "I enjoyed the whole experience. Everything was so fun, except for this one part when we went into this cave of mud!"

"It was a fundraiser for breast cancer, and I had a blast. The mud pit was probably the most fun out of everything for me. I was covered in mud from head to toe," Talley said.

Baseball beats Rockdale

With a power surge through the ducks bats the varsity baseball team was able to win their first district game against the Rockdale Tigers in a high scoring game. Making a name for themselves in the district, the Ducks dominated rival neighbor Rockdale, shattering Rockdale's 11 game win streak.

The Ducks sent out Steve Larson (12) to the mound as the district opening starter. "It was an honor that I was able to start the first district game and get us the win," Larson said.

The final score of the game was 14 to 8.

Meet Mr. Downs

Alondra Trujillo

"I came to Taylor because I felt like it was going to be a great place to be, and I enjoy the community and the leadership that this town shows," Mr. Downs said.

Before he came to Taylor High School, Mr. Downs was a high school U.S. History teacher, an education coordinator and worked at an alternative school. By taking this job, he is beginning a new page of his career.

"While I'm here, I plan on increasing the achievement and success of the students and promote a safe and fun learning environment for both the students and staff members," Mr. Downs said.

Doing so, he said was going to be his highest priority.

"I plan on being here for a very long time. I really enjoy the culture that is here, the schools and the programs available," Mr. Downs said.

Mr. Downs also thought it was going to be enjoyable being a Duck and he plans to have great years to come.

"I can do all things through Him who strengthens me."
Philippians 4:13

Reagan Fischer

When you were born the stars shone bright,
A tiny perfect, wondrous sight.

The babe became a growing boy,
Meeting life with cries of joy,

from awkward steps to reading books,
Games with balls and baiting hooks.

As years went by, a man appeared,
Loved and nurtured through the years.

With honest eyes he views the day,
A caring heart is there to stay.'

A silent strength, an active mind,
A better man is hard to find.

I view him with both love and pride,
for you, my son, in him reside.

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord, "plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." Jeremiah 29:11

Dear readers:

Designing and putting together a yearbook takes passion, determination, and heart. While a million things were going on in the Mallard room, we were all pushing for one goal, perfection bound by two ends of a hard cover. This book was not the production of just one person, but a group of people that worked day in and day out to put it in your hands. Mrs. C, thank you for teaching me so much throughout the three years that I have been on the staff and for the immense amounts of work that you did to make this book happen. To Lorellye, thank you for being so efficient and doing the business side of the yearbook, as well as working on ads and the portraits pages. Lauren, you're awesome. Thank you for making everyone's ads look wonderful! Savannah, Nami, and Mallory, without you three, I don't know what I would do. You three designed the majority of this yearbook and you should all be proud of your hard work. Thank you for your dedication to the making of this book, as well as putting up with me when I asked you to makes changes, even though I'm sure you wanted to kill me. Anna, you did such a great job on the sports pages. I know it could be a boring task at times, but I am so thankful for your perseverance and dedication. Cody and Cody, Theo, Gabriel, and José thank you all for doing the tedious tasks of working on the index and the elementary school book, as well as doing anything that the page designers needed. We were so grateful for you all. I have left Justus for last, because he has had such a special role on this staff. Thank you for having such an admirable and willing attitude all the time.
